Girl Scouts Create Pet Pantry At Quincy Dog Park

By TOM GORMAN

Dogs visiting the Quincy Dog Park will now have some snacks to enjoy thanks to a group of Girl Scouts who created a pet pantry.

Residents, local officials, and of course, dogs, gathered on Friday, April 8 at the dog park on Quarry Street where members of Quincy Girl Scout Troop 62257 unveiled the pet pantry they made and installed that contains various donated dog snacks. The pantry is an enclosed 3-foot high by

Councillors Question $16.4M Plan To Expand Pine Hill Cemetery

By SCOTT JACKSON

During a recent committee hearing, city councillors raised questions about a proposed $16.4 million expansion of Pine Hill Cemetery, which would add 14,000 interment and inurnment spaces to the West Quincy burial ground, and put off a vote on the project until they receive additional information on the plan.

Mayor Thomas Koch in February submitted the $16.4 million bond request to the council. The council's finance committee met on April 4 to review the request.

During that hearing, David Murphy, the city's commissioner of natural resources, called the Fire Department Reminder: Open Burning Not Allowed In Quincy

Open burning is NOT allowed in the City of Quincy, the Quincy Fire Department reminds local homeowners and residents.

This includes, but is not limited to: burning leaves or brush piles, garbage, tires or rubber products, paint or used oil, plastic, and any household item that can be recycled.

Open burning means burning under such conditions that the products of combustion are emitted directly into the ambient air space.

The Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP) and the Quincy Fire Department do NOT allow open burning for public health and safety reasons. Open burning pollutes the air and can make it difficult for people with respiratory problems to breathe. Open burning can pose smoke and odor nuisances to nearby residents in densely populated areas and can also pose a risk when it is not adequately controlled.

NSDAR Honors Two Quincy Residents At Annual Luncheon

The Boston Tea Party Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), one of the world's largest and most active service organizations, held their Annual Awards Luncheon at the beautiful College Club, 44 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

Caroline Cavicchi, a graduating senior at North Quincy High School, was the recipient of the DAR Good Citizen Award and Scholarship. The DAR Good Citizens program and scholarship contest is intended to encourage and reward the qualities of good citizenship.

Caroline is an outstanding student in academics, sports and in her community. She is in the top 6 percent of her class and she plans on majoring in engineering and has taken an engineering course during her senior year. She has consistently maintained a Distinction Honor Roll status throughout all four years of high school.

She has been a key member and was captain of the Girls Soccer team at North Quincy High School as well being the senior captain of the inaugural Q-NQ ski team. She pays it forward by coaching the youngest soccer players in the Quincy Youth Soccer program. She wants to "instill the love of the game in the next generation of players."

Caroline is vice president of the Engineering Club, co-president of the Book Club and a member of the National Honor Society at North Quincy High School. In addition to academic studies, varsity sports and coaching, she has found time to Referee for the Quincy Youth Soccer, works at a local grocery store and babysits.

Kumu Gupta of Quincy was the recipient of the DAR Community Service Award. The DAR Community Service Award is a non-competitive award opportunity for chapters and states to provide a recognition to individuals and organizations for performing outstanding voluntary service within the previous five years. Kumu has been active in Community Service, both in Quincy and in India. She has worked with the Indian American community to increase health practices with diet and receiving the COVID vaccine. Her passion for the past 20 years has been to help victims of domestic violence and to eliminate child labor, particularly in India.

This year, Kumu is working to obtain a White House proclamation for "Women in Baseball Day" for marking the 80th anniversary on May 31, 2022. She arranged for a Proclamation for Mary Pratt, a league player from Quincy, and to have her biography included in the Smithsonian Women's History Museum.

Kumu's passion for the past 20 years has been to help the victims of domestic violence and to eliminate child labor. 2021 was the year of Elimination of Child Labor and she helped a company in New Jersey to offer one year of free virtual AI and Robotics classes to children rescued from child labor in Bal Ashram, India during the pandemic. In 2018, Kumu worked with children at the Broad Meadows Middle School in Quincy, MA who were involved in the Operations Days Work and were able to speak with their legislator to talk about bills to stop child labor in the US and world.

In domestic violence prevention, in 2021, Kumu sent a proposal to the US Postal Service Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee for the issuance of a Domestic Violence Awareness Forever Stamp to be issued in 2024 during the 30th anniversary of the Violence Against Women Act. In 2017, VP Biden sent a letter of acknowledgement to Kumu for her many years of helping victims of domestic violence and their families in the South Asian and American communities.

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was founded in 1890 to preserve the memory and spirit of those who contributed to securing American independence. Any woman 18 years or older, regardless of race, religion, or ethnic background, who can prove lineal descent from a patriot of the American Revolution is eligible for membership.

DAR is one of the world's largest and most active women's service organizations with nearly 185,000 current members in approximately 3,000 chapters worldwide. These members passionately carry out the timeless mission of promoting historic preservation, education and patriotism. To learn more about the work of today's DAR, visit www.dar.org.

Planning Board OKs Beale Street Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Planning Board has given its approval to a mixed-use building on Beale Street featuring 80 apartments and 13,000 square feet of commercial space, which could be the first of many changes coming to Wollaston Center.

The Planning Board on April 13 approved BCC Acquisition LLC's request to construct the six-story building at 21-31 Beale St. The project still requires approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The proposed building would be located on the parcels of land at 21-31 Beale St., 51-55 Cushing St., and 65-67 Chapman St., which contain 33,172 square feet of land. The site is currently home to single-story commercial buildings on Beale Street and a pair of four-family homes.

The parcels are all located within a Business C zoning district. They are also in the area of the proposed Wollaston urban redevelopment plan, which Mayor Thomas Koch submitted to the City Council for approval last year and resubmitted at the start of the new council term in January.

Edward Fleming, the attorney representing BCC Acquisition at the Planning Board hearing, said his client's proposal would be the first step in the redevelopment of Wollaston Center.

"We think that this is a great opportunity to revitalize the Wollaston business district as the city hopes and intends to do so through the Wollaston urban redevelopment plan," Fleming said. "We think this is just the first step in a lot of really wonderful changes that are going to occur in the Wollaston business district."

The commercial space would be divided amongst six storefronts along Beale Street. Five of those commercial units would each contain 1,900 square feet of space, all on the ground floor, while the sixth unit would have a total of 3,000 square feet on the ground floor and a second level. Fleming said those commercial spaces are not yet leased out.

"These are going to be smaller commercial uses similar to the storefronts that are there today, just certainly much improved," he said.

The building would include two levels of parking — one on the lower level of the building and the other on the first floor — with a total of 93 parking spaces. The lower-level garage would be accessed via Chapman Street while the upper level of parking would be accessed via Cushing Street.

During the public hearing, Fleming said the building would be accessed via Chapman Street while the upper level of parking would be accessed via Cushing Street.

Own a home and there's something you want money for? There's a better way to get it

You have a house with lots of equity. A good income. Good monthly cash flow. And investments you don't want to touch right now. So what's the best way to get the money you want?

How about a 30-Year Refi with cash out from Colonial Federal? With fixed monthly payments, it's more predictable than an adjustable-rate home equity line. Way less expensive than credit cards. And you always have the opportunity to pay it off sooner if you make extra payments along the way. Sound interesting? THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On May 7, 1824, Ludwig van Beethoven's ninth and final symphony debuts at Vienna's Theater am Karntner. Having lost his hearing years earlier, the celebrated composer nonetheless appeared to conduct the first performance of his Ninth Symphony, while the real conductor stood in the wings. Beethoven was several bars off the actual music by the time the piece concluded.

• On May 5, 1904, Cy Young pitches the first perfect game in modern Major League Baseball history as the Boston Americans defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-0. Young's perfect game was part of his then-record 45-inning scoreless streak.

• On May 4, 1916, Germany responds to a demand by U.S. President Woodrow Wilson by agreeing to limit its submarine warfare. However, on Feb. 1, 1917, Germany announced the resumption of unrestricted submarine warfare, and the United States formally entered World War I.

• On May 8, 1933, the first police radio system, connecting headquarters to patrol cars and patrol cars to one another, is installed in Eastchester Township, New York. The system consisted of one transmitter of 20 watts for the headquarters and two transmitters of 4.5 volts each for the two patrol cars.

• On May 3, 1952, a ski-modified U.S. Air Force C-47 becomes the first aircraft to land on the North Pole. Aboard the flight was Dr. Albert P. Crary, an American scientist who in 1961 traveled to the South Pole by motorized vehicle, becoming the first person in history to have stood on both poles.

• On May 2, 1972, Steven Spielberg begins filming "Jaws." The production, which used three mechanical sharks, enthralled audiences and grossed $458 million in its theatrical release.

April Is Women's Eye Health & Safety Month

By Dr. CAROLANN SPERANZO, DHS, RDO

Once again the national organization Prevent Blindness has declared April Women's Eye Health and Safety Month.

According to the Society for Women's Health Research (SWHR) women are two times more likely to have dry eye and more than 65% of those with Age-related Macular Degeneration are women. In addition, greater than 67% of those with glaucoma in the U.S. are women. Women are also five to six times more likely than men to experience thyroid eye disease (TED). This in itself may not be surprising, but the data from the World Health Organization (WHO) noted that women have more seven percent more distance vision issues. Prevent Blindness hopes to raise awareness this month encouraging women to have their vision and eye health examined regularly.

One telling statistic is from the National Eye Institute that found two out of every three people declared blind or having vision problems are women. There are wellness tips helpful to benefit the health of the eyes as well. These include eating foods such as leafy greens, cold water fish, and fruits and vegetables high in vitamins C, E, and zinc. Also, these nutrients and exercise may minimize the diseases that affect eye health such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease, and hypertension.

And, of course, with more women working on the computer with Zoom from home, taking a break following the 20-20-20 rule eases strain: every twenty minutes take a break to look twenty feet away for twenty seconds. Not only does this relax eye fatigue, following this provides the opportunity to blink to rewet your eyes. Symptoms of digital eye strain include dry eyes, headaches, and migraines.

Often, economic issues cause women to delay the purchase of eyeglasses. Many Eye Care Professionals offer economy packages so feel free to ask about specials and payment plans. The local Lions Club continues the mission requested by Helen Keller years ago to support those with vision problems. The Lions Club of Quincy has remained active and supportive throughout Covid. For those who may want to join in their work they may be reached at quincylions@gmail.com or go to www.quincylionsclub.com for more information.

So, this April celebrate Women's Eye Health and Safety Month by scheduling an eye examination and updating your eyeglasses to ensure scratch-free lens clarity and comfort for your best vision.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS 1920 real photo postcard is a view of the Beach Lodge Team Room, a seasonal boutique restaurant and inn that was on the corner of East Elm Avenue and the Boulevard across from Wollaston Beach. The restaurant specialized in "dainty" luncheons and chicken and waffle dinners. They also offered a wide selection of temperance drinks to be enjoyed with the "refreshing seaside breezes." The Beach Lodge closed in 1926 and the next summer this building became the first Howard Johnson's road-side ice cream shop. It was a huge success. He had opened his first store in 1925 less than a mile from here at the Wollaston railroad depot and he soon found that his rich and creamy 28 flavors of ice cream was his best selling item. Howard Johnson's stayed at this location for 10 years before moving a block away into a new larger building that had been built as a SIMCO ice cream shop on the corner of Sachem Street. By then there were 100 Howard Johnson's stores. This East Elm Avenue corner site is now home to the Wollaston Beach Playground.

City Budget Looks Like $117.8 Million

If this week's City Council Finance Committee meeting is a sign, it appears that the city's $117.8 million dollar budget for fiscal year 1990 will be approved with little or no changes.

The committee reviewed a number of departmental budgets and passed most of them. Only a handful did not receive committee support, but it appears there will be another budget review meeting.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen McGrath said another committee meeting would be held May 8. At that time other departmental budgets including fire, police and schools will be analyzed.

$275,000 ANIMAL SHELTER TO BE DEDICATED

Quincy's new animal shelter will be dedicated at its Broad Street location May 2, by Mayor Francis X. McCauley. Other officials expected to attend the dedication of the $275,000 shelter include, Althea Griffin, president of the South Shore Humane Society; John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League; Thomas White, director of the Animal Rescue League, as well as Phyllis Berlucchi, Animal Control Officer.

According to David Colton, deputy commissioner of Public Works, the structure will have 15 to 20 cages for dogs, plus a separate room for cats and puppies.

SIX CITY EMPLOYEES TO BE HONORED

Six city employees will be recognized at the seventh annual Mayor's Employee Appreciation Award Ceremony May 11.

The 1989 recipients include: Valerie Palmer, a registered nurse at Quincy Hospital; Ann McLaughlin, assistant director of The Thomas Crane Library; Patricia Ryan, assistant dean at Quincy Junior College; Duncan Blight, building custodian at City Hall; Mary (Fee Curtin) Pace, a teacher at Atherton Hough School and Janet Ellis, Equal Opportunity Administrator for the City of Quincy.

Top 20 Reasons For An On-Site Registry IT Department

By WILLIAM O'DONNELL
Norfolk County Register of Deeds

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has been a soundly managed agency that delivers quality services to the residents of Norfolk County. This quality delivery of services to homeowners and registry users has been a team approach that utilizes an on-site direct report in the Registry budget Registry Information (IT) Technology Department. Two Norfolk County Commissioners, Peter Collins and Joseph Shea, voted to not appoint the Registry Chief Information Officer (CIO) designee who was replacing the retiring Registry CIO on June 30, 2021.

Now the Registry of Deeds and those that use the Registry of Deeds services are fighting to keep the two person on-site funded Registry Department. The Registry CIO position still has not been filled due to votes by the Norfolk County Commissioners the most recent one being another vote earlier this month. These decisions are reckless given the possible bad outcomes that could take place from cybersecurity breaches and ransomware.

The college basketball tournaments just ended so with that in mind let's look at the top 20 reasons you should want the Norfolk Registry of Deeds to keep its Registry IT Department as it has had for over 35 years. If after reading these reasons and you agree with them please contact the Norfolk County Advisory Board members who will be voting on this in the budget process. Ask these representatives to support the Norfolk Registry of Deeds by keeping its on-site Registry IT staff under the leadership of a high level direct report Registry Technology expert.

REASON 1: The legal title to your home is authenticated by the land records recorded at the Registry of Deeds. When you go to sell your home and for that matter when you as buyers purchase a home do you want title issues on that property?

REASON 2: The Federal Bureau of Investigation (F.B.I.) says that the fastest growing white collar crime is property and deed fraud. Do you think that property records that affect your home or business are not an inviting target for hackers and cybersecurity incidents?

REASON 3: The Real Estate Bar Association for Massachusetts which represents thousands of attorneys wrote "Technology has been the foundation of the modernization initiatives that have been implemented over the years at the Norfolk Registry. Technology overseen by the Registry CIO is essential and critical for services to the users and stakeholders of the Norfolk Registry of Deeds."

REASON 4: The White House has issued documentation that outlines several ways to protect against cyberattacks including checking with your IT professionals. Does it make sense not to have an on-site Information Technology (IT) professional staff at the Registry of Deeds in this day and age?

REASON 5: An arm of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts from its Information Technology Division wrote in March of this year "In light of the ongoing geopolitical situation between Russia and Ukraine, attempted cyberattacks towards state and municipal IT systems are expected to increase over the coming weeks and months."

REASON 6: Over 205,000 land records were recorded between January 1 and December 31, 2021 at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds. Technology allows those recordings to take place and protects the over 45 million pages of images in the Registry internet land recording library.

REASON 7: There is internet land record research at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds via its website www.norfolk-deeds.org. There are land records on line that can be viewed and researched back to 1793 available to any and everyone who has access to a computer, tablet or mobile device.

REASON 8: Modernization Initiatives driven by technology have allowed real estate professionals as well as those interested in historical and genealogical research to use indexes and documents dating back to 1793 at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds.

REASON 9: This on-site direct report 2 person IT Department at the Registry has developed a disaster recovery office to keep the Registry operational should there be a fire, flood or some other business continuity interruption.

REASON 10: Besides a dedicated staff it was the tremendous work of the Registry IT Department that kept the Norfolk Registry of Deeds open and operational every work day since Governor Baker declared a COVID-19 emergency on March 10, 2020.

REASON 11: As the Town of Millis Selectboard wrote to the Norfolk County Commissioners: "We stand with the Register of Deeds in his fervent request that the Registry be able to maintain professional, expert and full-time oversight over the county's land records system. The funds collected by the Registry provide vital revenues to the county as well as the many municipalities that participate in the Community Preservation Act program."

REASON 12: Over 82 million dollars of revenues were collected by the Norfolk Registry of Deeds between January 1 to December 31, 2021. Isn't this a target for hackers,

Taste Of South Shore Event Helps YMCA Feed The Community

For over 20 years, the South Shore YMCA has gathered over 700 guests in Lombardo's grand ballroom to enjoy food and beverage tastings from over 25 local restaurants, wineries, and breweries for the Y's signature fundraiser, The Taste of the South Shore.

With the uncertainty of COVID over the past two years, the Y was forced to reimagine its popular fundraiser once again for 2022 and on April 6, the Taste of the South Shore was held virtually. Guests tuned in via computer or mobile device to watch the action at home while enjoying a gourmet "heat and eat" Taste Dinner Box, which included four-course meals prepared by different area restaurants, paired with local craft beers or wines.

Thanks to the generosity of the event's sponsors, partners, and donors, the event raised over $250,000 to support the South Shore YMCA food pantry and its mission to ensure that no one on the South Shore goes hungry, while also supporting local restaurants, food, and beverage companies.

"Due to the rise of inflation, our South Shore YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center food pantry is seeing much longer lines recently," said Paul Gorman, South Shore YMCA president and CEO. "The lines are mostly local seniors who are scared about the increasing cost of food. Funds raised through the Taste of the South Shore support the Y's food pantry to serve our community year-round."

For over 25 years, the South Shore YMCA has partnered with the City of Quincy to operate the SSYMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center and food pantry. Thanks to donations and grants, the center has provided this multi-cultural community and its many lower-income families with life-changing programs and services, such as afterschool programs, women and family support groups, language interpretation services, music programs, career preparation programs, nutritious cooking classes, cultural appreciation dinners, neighborhood celebrations, and more.

The Taste 2022 also benefits the South Shore YMCA community and teaching farms in Hanover, Quincy, and at the South Shore YMCA Camp Burgess & Hayward overnight camps.

"Farming has become a foundational component of our overnight camp experience," said Bruce Netherwood, vice president of BILLY COSTA and South Shore YMCA CEO Paul Gorman host the Taste of the South Shore virtual event.

Camping Services at the South Shore YMCA. "Here, kids can unplug from their devices, appreciate the joy of getting their hands dirty, and understand the true meaning of giving back, as the fresh produce they grow is donated to the food pantry."

"This season, we expect to harvest thousands of pounds of food this year for our food pantry," said Dan Berry, executive director of the Emilson YMCA branch and South Shore YMCA Family Farm in Hanover. "It is all thanks to the support of our donors, volunteers, family members, early learning students, and Y campers, who come out here to enjoy the farm together and learn about sustainable farming. It is truly a community-led farm that, in return, helps feed the community."

Billy Costa of KISS 108 FM and NESN's Dining Playbook joined Gorman to emcee this year's virtual Taste broadcast, which was headlined by a "Best Dish Award" competition where top local chefs prepared, plated, and paired their signature dishes with local craft beer and wine selections before an intimate audience of Y supporters and partners.

David Lombardo of Lombardo's in Randolph hosted the Best Dish competition between chefs Mark Ellis, executive chef and owner of The Chef's Table catering, Fuji Group's Executive Chef and Owner, Jimmy Liang, along with Executive Sushi Chef, Ming Cao, Robin King, executive chef and owner of Restaurant ORO, and Paul Wahlberg, executive chef and owner of Alma Nove.

"We are a Y family," said Chef Robin King of ORO, "and this year my son is beside me cooking for guests at The Taste, which is a thrill. We are so excited that all our children will have the opportunity to experience the Y's Camp Burgess this summer, and we are honored to support the Y and its mission by being here today."

The winner of this year's Best Dish Award went to Mark Ellis of The Chef's Table, a catering business he owns along with his wife, Julie Ellis. Ellis prepared a truffle "explosion" ravioli with spring vegetables and bacon lardon, paired with a chardonnay from Taste partner, Bin Ends. The dishes were judged by participants based on presentation, taste, and creativity.

"I'm shocked," said Ellis of the win. "It is an honor to participate in The Taste along with these amazing chefs, who have become close friends. This event is so important to all of us, to our businesses and to our community. We are proud to be a part of it."

"Restaurants and hospitality businesses are still struggling, but we are making a comeback," said David Lombardo. "We always do what we can to support the Y and its mission, and it is exciting to see these talented chefs do what they do best at The Taste."

Pigskin Gala Donates $5,000 Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading

Thanksgiving Day Pre-Game Celebration Tops $20,000 In Youth Donations Since 2018

By KERRY BYRNE

The Pigskin Gala closed the books on another festive season of friendship and civic pride last month with a $5,000 donation to Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading.

"We're delighted to once again show our support for the students, athletes and families who devote their time, spirit and enthusiasm to enriching our city with competition and community," said Pigskin Gala co-founder Robert Buttomer.

The Pigskin Gala, dubbed America's Greatest High School Football Tailgate Party, is a free public breakfast at Pageant Field that precedes the annual Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game. The civic celebration annually attracts hundreds of guests from both sides of the city and enjoyed its 34th year amid perfect autumn temperatures and stunning blue skies in 2021.

The Pigskin Gala Fund has raised and donated more than $20,000 to Quincy and North Quincy students and citywide youth activities since its creation in 2018.

"We want to thank the Pigskin Gala family for supporting the young football players and cheerleaders of the city," said Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading President Sean "Chooch" Halpin. "The rich tradition of Turkey Day football in Quincy is now nearly a century old and we keep it alive by instilling its spirit in the high school students of the future."

The 2021 Pigskin Gala featured the first Pigskin Gala Bowl, a spirited flag football match pitting Quincy vs. North Quincy at Pageant Field, before the Quincy-North Quincy varsity football game, organized by Halpin and parents and featuring dozens of enthusiastic players from both sides of the city. The young Presidents and young Raiders battled to a thrilling 24-24 tie in the "Littlest Turkey Day Game."

The 2021 event also honored Scott Campbell, representing Quincy High School alumni, and Sean Glennon representing North Quincy High School alumni, as its Pigskin Gala co-Football Man of the Year award recipients. The annual honor goes to the citizen or citizens who go above and beyond the call of duty to promote the spirit of and love for the great American game of football in Quincy.

The award in 2022 has been renamed the Joe Brill Memorial Football Man of the Year award in honor of Quincy's beloved longtime youth sports volunteer and community activist. Mr. Brill, of Houghs Neck, sadly passed away on Thanksgiving Day, shortly after attending the Pigskin Gala. His loss is felt by the entire Pigskin Gala community.

Campbell and Glennon, among many other contributions to the city, organized Senior Week events for Class of 2020 students from both high schools who missed out on typical graduation ceremonies because of pandemic restrictions.

The Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading check donation ceremony took place last month at Braintree Brewhouse. The restaurant's owner, Alex Kesaris, is a North Quincy High School graduate and original benefactor of the annual charity tailgate party.

"Alex Kesaris was the first local businessman to donate to the Pigskin Gala and we have been delighted to enjoy his support each year and to share his generosity with the children of his beloved hometown of Quincy," said Pigskin Gala Host Committee member Mark Linnane.

The 2021 Pigskin Gala welcomed donations from many other generous local business owners, including: Mike Boyce of Commonwealth Elevator, Joe Cardarelli of Cardarelli Plumbing & Heating, Mike Cronin of Cronin's Publick House, John MacNeil of the Fowler House Café, Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott and George Pepdjonovic of George Pep's Baseball Cards & More.

Breakfast this year was generously donated by restaurateurs Donato and Donato Frattaroli Jr., and Chef Pino Maffeo, of Victory Point restaurant in Marina Bay, who provided free of charge food for 200 guests. Additional food donations were made by Chef Jay Hajj of Mike's City Diner in Boston's South End, Chef Avi Shemtov of Simcha Restaurant in Sharon and Ed Curran of the Krumsville Inn in Krumsville, Penn. Pigskin Gala Host Committee member Paul Desmond ran the outdoor kitchen on game-day.

Dozens of Quincy residents made individual donations to the Pigskin Gala once again this year while the Quincy Parks Department, led by David Murphy and aided by Paul "Doc" Doherty and crews, again supported event logistics.

Patrick Sullivan, the Official Bagpiper of the Pigskin Gala, scion of Dan and Keri (Mortimer) Sullivan, both QHS Class of 1988, regaled guests in glorious fashion with "America the Beautiful" and "The Marine Corps Hymn."

Valerie Solimini, QHS Class of 1988, was named 2021 Pigskin Gala Most Valuable Tailgater, a cherished honor coveted by all who attend, for swooping in and providing last-second contributions too crucial and too numerous to delineate here.

The Pigskin Gala is held each year in memory of Phyllis Buttomer and Nancy Byrne. Longtime friends and mothers of a combined 10 Quincy High School graduates, Phyllis and "Fancy Nancy" hosted the Pigskin Gala for two decades, annually welcoming countless football fans into their homes on Thanksgiving morning, before the event moved to Pageant Field. Both shared an August 8 birthday, a coincidence which brought delight and joy to both families.

"The 2021 Pigskin Gala may have been our biggest and best event yet," said Pigskin Gala Host Committee member and Adams Shore resident Francis "Frankie C." Capobianco. "We can't wait until Thanksgiving Day 2022 to renew this great Quincy tradition."

Past beneficiaries of the Pigskin Gala Fun include the band, cheerleading, wrestling and lacrosse programs from both high schools, as well as the Chris "Chief" McCallum Scholarship Fund, which aids a worthy North Quincy High senior student athlete, and the Stuart Slicis Memorial City of Presidents Scholarship Fund, which goes to the exiting Quincy High student body president.

Pigskin Gala XXXV is slated for Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 24 at Pageant Field, preceding the 10 a.m. kickoff of the Quincy-North Quincy holiday football game across the street at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

WHAT'S COOKING

One Skillet Spinach And Potato Sauté

By MARIE

I never know when I am talking on the phone that sometimes someone will tell me what they cooked for dinner the night before. Sometimes these recipes are different and sometimes they are family recipes from the past.

Recently, my cousin, Ursula called me for a chat and mentioned that she had made one of her mother's dishes the night before as she does this frequently. This delicious concoction is very simple and done in one skillet and makes a great side dish.

Directions and Ingredients

3 medium sized potatoes - cut in bit-sized pieces

1 package of frozen, chopped spinach
2 or 3 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
3 tablespoons of olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and potatoes until crispy.

Then, add the spinach just as it is and cover.

Simmer, stirring occasionally, until spinach is done and blended with the potatoes.

Serve hot with a favorite bread - or serve just plain.

A very delicious recipe - thanks Ursula!!

Walnut Spread

By SUZIE

So, before you read the recipe, here is some information regarding walnuts that you might not know.

Walnuts help reduce "belly fat", help decrease LDL cholesterol (and increase the good kind) increase heart healthy omega 3's in red blood cells, help to reduce inflammation, in human subjects have showed to reduce the risk of pancreatic cancer, and in rat and mice studies, have been shown to reduce the risk of breast cancer, may help with bone loss and improve overall bone health, and contain high amounts of important minerals (like magnesium) which is found to be lacking significantly in our diets in general.

This is a terrific spread and takes only a few minutes. Great for a summer party or a quick and easy appetizer!

WALNUT SPREAD

1 can garbanzo beans
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup basil leaves
1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
sea salt and pepper
1 small clove garlic, minced (or garlic powder, just 1/4 tsp or so)

Drain beans and reserve liquid. In food processor, combine 1/4 cup reserved liquid with all other ingredients. Cover and process.

You may need to add more liquid as you go along to make it nice and smooth. Serve with raw vegetables, crackers, or spread on your next healthy sandwichwhatever you enjoy!

Grandma's Apple Sauce Cake

By MARIE

When we were growing up my mother baked almost every day - it was either homemade delicious breads, or a dessert of some kind. One of our favorites was an apple sauce cake - and that is today's recipe!

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees; prepare a 2 x 13-inch baking pan

Ingredients and Directions

1/2 cup butter
2 cups of sugar
2 eggs
2 and 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 and 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon all-spice
1 1/2 cups apple sauce
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped pecans (optional)

In a bowl, cream the butter and gradually add the sugar mixing until well blended.

Add eggs, beat well after each one.

Stir in the dry ingredients alternately with the egg mixture.

Add the apple sauce, nuts and raisins.

Turn the batter into a greased and lightly floured 2 by 13-inch pan or a bunt pan or any pan of your choice.

Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes or until a toothpick test comes out clean.

Movie Review:

'Sonic The Hedgehog 2

By BOB GARVER

Last week I reviewed "Morbius," a film whose constant delays in release turned it into a punchline. Next week I'll review the new "Fantastic Beasts," part of a franchise whose behind-the-scenes scandals have turned it into a punchline. Sandwiched between the two is "Sonic the Hedgehog 2," an agreeable, light-hearted affair whose only crime is being a sequel to a film whose disastrous first trailer turned it into a punchline three years ago.

One of the very few bright spots of the 2020 domestic box office was the success of "Sonic the Hedgehog." The Sega video game adaptation made $148 million, making it one of only two movies to pass $100 million in that pandemic-tainted year. More importantly, it became the highest-grossing video game adaptation of all time. Short of a pandemic-sized roadblock, "Sonic the Hedgehog 2" is on track to break that record thanks to a $71 million opening weekend (and not including Easter weekend). Not bad for a franchise that gave the world one of its most hated CGI monstrosities when the first trailer was released in 2019. The overwhelmingly negative reaction to the gangly, human-toothed Sonic from that trailer caused a months-long delay while the character was redesigned. But the rework paid off, as it led to both critical and commercial success for the film, not to mention interest in the sequel.

The new chapter starts with the villainous Dr. Robotnik (Jim Carrey) escaping exile on a mushroom planet thanks to his trademark ingenuity and a hand from new ally Knuckles the Echidna (Idris Elba). Back on Earth, Sonic (Ben Schwartz) makes a mess of foiling a bank robbery. His parent-like human ally Tom (James Marsden) tells him he needs to be more responsible, so he puts him in charge of the house while he and his wife Maddie (Tika Sumpter) go to a wedding in Hawaii. Sonic isn't punished or made to fix the damage he's done, he just gets the house to himself for the weekend, and immediately gets to partying.

The party is short-lived, however, as trouble soon finds Sonic in the form of Robotnik and Knuckles. Fortunately, new fox ally Tails (Colleen O'Shaughnessy) emerges to help fend the villains off. From there the movie becomes a two-on-two race to see who can find an all-powerful emerald first. Adventure and gags ensue. It's been less than two months since "Uncharted" and two weeks since "The Lost City," so the movie is striking a very familiar tone with its treasure hunters, but at least here it's with more likeable characters.

To be honest, I didn't care about the emerald stuff at all (Tails is noticeably flat in his exposition). I found much more enjoyment in Sonic/Tails/Robotnik/Knuckles relationship, as the characters learn lessons about courage, compassion, trust, and yes, responsibility. If any storyline in this movie is particularly "engaging," it's the wedding between Maddie's sister Rachel (Natasha Rothwell) and fiancé Randall (Shemar Moore, who could very easily replace John Stamos as the poster boy for never aging). I know people don't go to see a Sonic the Hedgehog movie for wedding hijinks, but the jokes in these scenes just land at a better rate than in non-wedding scenes.

The bad news is that I'm not ready to say that "Sonic the Hedgehog 2" breaks my streak of having never seen a "good" video game movie. The story picks some bad times to not take itself seriously, the blurry action did nothing for me, and I was really feeling the runtime toward the end. The good news is that there's nothing painfully unfunny or disagreeable here. Jim Carrey is in tip-top comedic form (I hope he's not serious about retiring from acting) and all the characters are likeable in one way or another. I wouldn't say this movie should be a priority for adults, but it's fine as a choice for families with kids.

Grade: C

"Sonic the Hedgehog 2" is rated PG for action, some violence, rude humor, and mild language. Its running time is 122 minutes.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Will My Wife Get A Spouse Benefit When I Claim at 70?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My wife started receiving her Social Security at 65 (her full retirement age) and she will be 69 years old this July. I was able to receive half of her Social Security under an older law. This April, I will turn 70 and will start to receive my own Social Security. I know I will no longer be receiving a spousal benefit at that time, but what I don't understand is will my wife be able to claim a spousal benefit and collect 50% of my Social Security. She presently is receiving about $930 but 50% of my social security could be around $1,800. Can you provide any insight on this? Signed: Turning 70

Dear Turning: You are correct that you are now collecting your spouse benefit under an "old law," which was changed by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 and is no longer available to anyone born after Jan. 1, 1954. You are also correct that since you are now receiving a spousal benefit from your wife on a "restricted application for spouse benefits only," you can claim your personal SS retirement benefit to start at age 70, at which time your spousal benefit from your wife will stop. You can apply for your age 70 benefit now, prior to April, but just be sure to specify on your application that you want your SS retirement benefit to begin in April (to avoid a reduction). FYI, you can do this online at www.ssa.gov - there is a question on the application which asks if you are now collecting benefits from anyone else, to which you should answer "yes" and provide your wife's Social Security number. To apply online, you'll need to first create your personal "my Social Security" account, which is easy to do at www.ssa.gov/myaccount. Of course, you can also apply by phone at your local SS office or by calling 1.800.772.1213 but applying online is by far the most efficient method.

After you have submitted your application for your own SS retirement benefit, your wife can apply for a spousal benefit from you, but her spousal benefit amount may not be precisely as you believe. First, your wife's spousal benefit will be based on the benefit amount you were entitled to at your full retirement age (FRA) of 66, not your age 70 benefit amount. Second, your wife was born in 1953 so her full retirement age is 66 (not 65). If your wife claimed her own SS benefit at age 65, she actually claimed a year early, so it was slightly reduced from her full benefit amount. That isn't a bad thing because it allowed you to collect your spouse benefit a year earlier, but it will slightly affect her spousal benefit from you and make it a bit less than 50% of your FRA benefit amount.

When a spouse takes their own benefit early their spousal amount will be less than 50% because of the way spouse benefits are calculated. Your wife's new benefit as your spouse will consist of two parts - her own benefit and a "spousal boost" to bring her payment to her spousal entitlement. Her "spousal boost" - which is the difference between her FRA benefit and half of your FRA benefit - will be added to her slightly reduced age 65 benefit and the total becomes her spousal payment, but it will be a bit less than 50% of your FRA benefit amount. Nevertheless, you were smart to take advantage of an "old law" which permitted you to get a spouse benefit from your wife while your own benefit grew to maximum.

Dr. Allan Yacubian Named 2022 NQHS Football Alumni Honoree

By COLIN RILEY

Dr. Allan Yacubian, the inspiration, model, and namesake for North Quincy High School's mascot, Yakoo, will be the 2022 honoree at the NQHS Football Alumni Scholarship Golf Tournament and luncheon at Hyannis Golf Course on June 27.

Dr. Yacubian, an athlete and 1958 NQHS graduate, worked with a group of enthusiastic high school classmates in designing the original Yakoo, and took the lead in re-inventing and revealing the updated Patriot version of Yakoo in 2020. Throughout his life Dr. Yacubian has exemplified NQHS spirit and has been a longtime benefactor and supporter of Raider teams.

This year marks the 26th year for the golf tournament that has raised and distributed tens of thousands of dollars in scholarships for NQHS high school seniors.

Save the date and honor Dr. Yakoo at the Hyannis Golf Club June 27, along with more than 100 fellow NQHS football alumni.

Go to www.northquincyfootball.com to register a team to play, or to attend the luncheon.

Neponset River Cleanup Set For Saturday

The Neponset River Watershed Association (NepRWA), along with an extraordinary group of partners, will sponsor its Annual Spring Neponset River Cleanup on Saturday, April 23rd from 9 a.m. to noon with work sites in Quincy, Dorchester, Milton, Mattapan, Hyde Park, Norwood, Walpole, Canton, and Foxborough.

Volunteers of all skill levels and physical abilities are needed to help with this important event. Join for an hour or the entire time - every bit helps.

Pre-registration is required at www.neponset.org/cleanup.

All volunteers are asked to meet at their pre-assigned site. Wear appropriate footwear (closed-toed shoes) and work clothes that can get dirty. We also suggest bringing sunscreen, hats, work gloves, and a filled water bottle. Children under the age of 12 must be accompanied by an adult.

"Our Annual River Cleanups make a significant difference in areas along the Neponset River, local streams, and parks that often go unnoticed. The spring cleanups not only make these sites look nicer, but they also improve recreational access and help wildlife habitats," said NepRWA Executive Director, Ian Cooke.

If you have any questions about the cleanup, contact NepRWA Environmental Fellow, Meghan Slocombe, at slocombe@neponset.org or 781-575-0354 x308.

Can't join us this time? Consider donating to help offset the cost. www.neponset.org/donate

Ask Barbara Graceffa: How To Boost Your Creativity

By BARBARA GRACEFFA

In his 2019 book, My Creative Space, Donald Rattner writes, "a creative thought is ... the result of an intricate interplay of mind, body, and place." In order to boost your creativity, focus on these three components.

Adopt a creative mindset. Let your thoughts wander and wonder. Overcome fear and self-doubt. Trust your intuition. Take risks. Change your plans a lot. Surrender control; break the rules. Be flexible and adapt. Always be learning – read a book or take a class on a new creative pursuit or even one you've been practicing for some time as you will always discover something new. Decide which criticism is valuable and disregard the rest.

I have been a quilter for over 40 years. When the pandemic started, I created a bucket list for my quilt art which included techniques I wanted to learn, unusual fabrics to include in my quilts, and the like. The results were some of the most beautiful pieces I have done in years. I recently took a class on improvisational quilting, a technique that was way out of my comfort zone. All I can say is that I had a ball and can't wait to make more in this style.

Prep your body for creativity, too. When do your best ideas flow? Most of us notice them after a good night's sleep (or even a short nap), exercise, meditation, or a shower. Caffeine motivates and helps fuse disparate ideas while alcohol induces out-of-the-box, free thinking. Eating fruits, vegetables, whole grains, eggs, and fish promote creative cognition.

Next, design your creative space and as Rattner says, "use it religiously." The color blue makes us happy and promotes open-minded, explorative, and divergent thinking. Play with the lighting; you may prefer bright lights or a dim cybersecurity incidents and ransomware?

REASON 13: The Norfolk Registry of Deeds works with your community's Board of Assessors and Assessor Departments to transmit critical records and data. Don Clarke, chief assessor of the Town of Norfolk, wrote to the Norfolk County Commissioners: "The coordination between the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds IT and our IT personnel has been outstanding in regards to the safe and secure e-delivery of deeds and plans which has allowed this office to stay current in its ownership date and therefore in compliance with DOR regulations."

REASON 14: The on-site direct report Registry IT staff with its acquired knowledge of Registry operations and technology gives timely responses to the needs and requests of the Registry staff, Registry users and stakeholders as well as the general public.

REASON 15: In Norfolk County you can sign up for the Consumer Notification Service for free. Through the efforts of the Registry IT staff you get notified of any transactions in your name. This will allow you to detect any fraudulent activity involving your property.

REASON 16: The work of the Registry IT staff has allowed the Registry of Deeds to bring the Registry land records out into the community as part of the Registry of Deeds outreach program.

REASON 17: There is a remote electronic recording of land records. A real estate closing that takes place in any location can transmit the required land records to the Norfolk Registry of Deeds via electronic recording. The Norfolk Registry can conduct remote recording for Recorded Land as well as Land Court (registered) land. Not all registries in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts can do this.

REASON 18: The Customer Service Center at the Registry of Deeds where you can walk in for help or call the staff for help at (781) 461-6101 depend on the technology as well as the work of the on-site 2 person IT Department.

REASON 19: Krysta Hendrix of Reliable Research Solutions, a title examination company, wrote to the Norfolk County Commissioners: "I have experience working in every Registry of Deeds in Massachusetts and can say without hesitation that Norfolk County is the gold standard, most certainly in the Technology Department."

REASON 20: There are too many possible bad outcomes that can happen not allowing the Registry of Deeds to keep its on-site direct report in the Registry budget Registry IT staff. In addition, the Registry of Deeds has dedicated revenues from state law to pay for the positions.

You may have come up with some of your own reasons. Please forward these to me at registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org. In any event sometimes those in government make decisions and you just can not help but wonder why. Through your efforts we can work to have a transformative effect with a positive impact on this technology decision.

Residents Speak Out Against Sea Street Residential Building

Residence B zoning district that was formerly home to Imperial Terrace. The managers of the LLC are James Timmins, Quincy's city solicitor, and his son, Christopher, according to corporate records filed with the secretary of state's office.

The Planning Board held a hearing on the proposal on April 13 and will take up the matter again on June 8. The project also requires approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA held several hearings on the proposal last year but those proceedings are on hold until the Planning Board process is complete.

The proposed building would consist of a lower-level garage with three floors of residential units above. Architect Tim Johnson said the building would include 14 two-bedroom units and six single-bedroom units. Each of the units would have an outdoor patio or balcony and the building would also include a dog-walking area toward the rear of the site, an indoor dog-washing station, an exercise room and a common lounge.

The project would include a total of 46 parking spaces, 34 in the garage, 10 in a parking lot in the rear of the property, and two in front of the building. A driveway on the right-hand side of the building, as viewed from Sea Street, would provide access to the rear parking area and garage; the entryway to the garage would be located toward the rear of the building. There would also be a U-shaped driveway in front of the building for deliveries, trash removal, and drop-offs and pick-ups.

Josh Fetterman, a member of development team, said the applicant added additional guest spaces and the new driveway in front of the building based on community feedback. It will allow for "smooth pickup, delivery," he said, as well as "improvements for our operations, trash pickup and site safety."

A dozen residents spoke out against the proposal at the April 13 meeting or in ARTIST RENDERING of a proposed 20-unit residential building that would be located at 105 Sea St., formerly home to Imperial Terrace. written correspondence to the Planning Board. They expressed concerns about the size of the building as well as traffic and parking in the area.

"Merrymount sits at the end of Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and of course Merrymount - we're all sort of converging into this one tiny space," said Mike O'Connor, a Highfield Road resident.

"We already share this space with the DPW, the DPW yard, the garage, the waste collection yard, the water department, the police station, and now the homeless shelter. Not even mentioning the thousands of people who commute from the South Shore...who cut right through the heart of Merrymount every single day, twice a day, twelve months a year."

Some of the residents said they were concerned people visiting the new building would park in the residential neighborhood on the opposite side of Sea Street, which could lead to pedestrians being struck by vehicles.

"It is a disaster waiting to happen," said Lionel Andre of Longwood Road. "We already have people cutting through the neighborhood as is - this will make things worse."

"A kid is going to get hit, either in the neighborhood or trying to get out of that property. There is something bad going to happen if that property gets built."

One resident, John Rodophele of Grenwood Road, spoke in favor of the proposal during the hearing on April 13. Rodophele said the development would provide new growth and said a residential building would create less traffic than a restaurant like Imperial Terrace.

"All the people used to go to Imperial Terrace, have their Chinese food, and come and go...and there was never a problem there," Rodophele said. "This is going to be less traffic than a commercial business."

In response, Kevin Geary, a Samoset Avenue resident opposed to the proposal, agreed that restaurants do generate more traffic than residential projects. A restaurant, however, would generate less traffic during the morning and afternoon rush hours.

"I respect that yes, absolutely, a commercial space, a restaurant, is going to see a lot more traffic going in," said Geary, who works in the restaurant industry. "It's not the same kind of traffic. It's not the traffic you're going to see at rush hours where everybody is leaving for work, coming home from work, at the same time."

Geary noted he had presented a petition signed by more than 400 residents opposed to the project to the Zoning Board of Appeals. He and other residents were also concerned that projects of a similar size could be constructed elsewhere along Sea Street, such as the former home of Grumpy White's, should a 20-unit building be approved for the Imperial Terrace site.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said the applicant would be allowed to build six residential units on site by right, based on the minimum lot size required per dwelling unit. She called the 20-unit proposal too large for the site.

"I'm hoping you have heard the people who have spoken tonight, the neighbors, the taxpayers of the city of Quincy, who are concerned with the same thing. I'm not saying that they would say no to anything that comes back, but twenty units is still way too big when the right to build would be six," Mahoney said. "We all know that's the thing that needs to be addressed."

Ward 1 Councillor David

McCarthy credited the applicant for reducing the unit count, which was initially 30, down to 20, but said he thinks "it could be a little smaller."

"I think there has been a lot of positive work with this project between the neighbors and the applicant and I think we've still got to do a little more work here, but I think we're headed in the right direction," McCarthy said.

"Rock Solid Security"

On April 6, officers working the overnight shift were dispatched to Seaport Drive on a report of an attempted motor vehicle breaking and entering in progress.

Communications updated that the reporting party had a visual on the suspects and described them as two males wearing dark colored hooded sweatshirts and blue gloves.

The caller stated that the males were trying car doors (pulling handles in an attempt to open the door). The reporting party further stated one male was on a bicycle, while the other was on foot headed towards Victory Road.

Upon arrival, Officer T. Le located one male wearing a black hooded sweatshirt and blue gloves in the parking lot of 7 Seaport Dr. Officer Harrington located the second suspect wearing a black hooded sweatshirt and light colored sweatpants. This individual was along the tree line of the parking lot near a bicycle situated between two parked vehicles.

Officer Le spoke with the reporting party while Officer Harrington and Officer Ryan stood by the two suspects. The resident stated that he woke up early this morning and went out to his balcony to get some fresh air and drink his coffee. His balcony directly overlooks the parking lot of 7 Seaport Drive. He witnessed two males trying door handles on a Toyota in the parking lot. The caller took out his phone and was able to record one of the parties trying doors on a second vehicle, a Lexus.

Officer Le was able to view the footage and could see the suspect trying the door handle of the vehicle. Officer Le then asked the reporting party if he would be willing to do a show-up ID. The caller agreed. The caller was then read the instructions for the show-up ID attempt and stated that he understood. The caller positively identified the two suspects as the males that attempted the motor vehicle breaks. Both suspects were juveniles. An attempt to contact their parents/guardians via telephone from communications were unsuccessful.

The 16-year-old and 17-year-old males, both from Quincy, were transported home. Officers spoke with a parent/guardian at each residence. Officers explained the charges and the process of the criminal complaint for the attempted breaking & entering to a motor vehicle in the nighttime. A check of the area found no vehicle entered. The bicycle used during the attempt was brought into the station and placed in evidence. The reporting party agreed to send the video footage to Officer Le to be placed into evidence.

ing portion of the board's meeting, John Rodophele of Grenwood Road said he would like to see the developer include affordable housing units inside the building instead of making a payment to the Affordable Housing Trust Fund.

"I'd rather see the raw units. I'd rather start saying, if a developer wants to build 80 units, put eight affordable units on site," Rodophele said. "I don't want to segregate the low-income people in one part of the city and the high-income people in another part of the city."

In response, Fleming said it is the Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee that determines whether a developer includes affordable housing units on site or makes a payment into the trust fund.

"If they direct us to provide units on site, then that will be exactly what the applicant does. If they direct us to pay a cash-in-lieu-of payment, then that's what the applicant will do," Fleming said. "It's not the applicant's decision."

Pamela Brennan, a Dickens Street resident, said she was concerned about traffic in Wollaston.

"Driving through Wollaston has become a nightmare," she said. "I'm just wondering how this is going to handle all of this traffic overload. I'm sure we have a traffic group managing that, but it's kind of brutal right now."

Councillor Anne Mahoney also expressed concern about traffic in the area and the impact this development and future ones would have.

"It seems like an awful lot to go in there, especially considering there is going to be a lot of other developments going in," Mahoney said.

"This is one development but there are many more that are going in, so I guess I'm going to ask the Planning Board, when you're developing these things and looking at the full picture, how are we managing the traffic, because every development that comes before us we always say, 'the traffic engineer said we should be able to handle it,' but it's already congested now, so how do we handle that?"

In response, Rob Stevens, the deputy director of the city's planning department, said the Wollaston urban renewal plan would allow the city to take a look at traffic and pedestrian issues throughout the whole area.

"One of the reasons we've advanced an urban renewal plan for Wollaston is so the city can look at subsurface infrastructure and surface infrastructure...we can analyze it as an area issue, not an individual issue," Stevens said.

Fleming was optimistic tenants of the new building would be able to use the nearby Wollaston MBTA station and walk to area businesses.

"The hope is that the transit-oriented nature of the development will cause people to park their vehicles and leave their vehicles parked in the garage and utilize the public transportation. Not only that, but they are going to have hopefully with this development some great amenities close by to utilize within walking distance," Fleming said.

Councillor Nina Liang noted that as a condition of the Planning Board approval, the developer will be required to file a report related to traffic and parking one year after a certificate of occupancy for the building is issued, giving the city's traffic engineer a chance to consider whether any improvements can be made.

"At the one-year anniversary of the certificate of occupancy, the applicant is required to submit a report and so it gives us another bite at the apple to reassess the situation," Liang said.

"I'm looking forward to reengaging the community between now and then, and especially at that point, to make sure if there are any changes that we would like to see happen, it will allow us an opportunity to do so. That made me really happy to see that."

The developer will also pay the city $150,000 to help fund the repair of the existing water main under Chapman Street. The applicant has also committed to working with the city on improvements to the sidewalk along Beale Street.

Ayers Collecting Medical Equipment For Ukranians

Friday In Quincy

State Rep. Bruce Ayers (D-Quincy) is collecting durable medical equipment for Ukrainians, to be shipped overseas for people in need in and around the Eastern European country currently under attack by Russia.

Ayers, who runs the Quincy Helping Hand program, is partnering with collection efforts led by neighboring Plymouth County officials, who are working directly with the Christ the King Ukrainian Catholic Church in Jamaica Plain.

"Putin's war in Ukraine is an unjust and uncalled for act of aggression, and a major humanitarian crisis," Ayers said. "We need to support the refugees and stand with the Ukrainian people during these tough times. All of the items we collect will be donated and shipped overseas in the war zone and the surrounding region to ensure people have access to these much-needed items."

Ayers says his organization will be collecting lightly used durable medical equipment - such as walkers, wheelchairs, crutches, canes, commodes, shower seats, tub benches, and other similar items - through mid-April.

"It's been great to work with Plymouth County Commissioner Jared Valanzola and the church to gather these donations," Ayers said. "Quincy is a generous and supportive community, and I know we'll receive even more in the coming weeks."

Anyone wishing to donate items should email Ayers at bruce.ayers@yahoo.com, with the subject line "Equipment for Ukraine." Appointments will be made for items to be picked up on Friday, April 22. Items can also be dropped off at Ayers Collision Center, 440B East Squantum St..

Representative Ayers founded the Helping Hand program in 1991 to help defray the cost of durable medical equipment for seniors, veterans, and people with disabilities.

Gasoline Prices Drop Four Cents

Massachusetts's average gas price is down four cents from last week ($4.11), averaging $4.07 per gallon. Monday's price is 22 cents lower than a month ago ($4.29), and $1.33 higher than April 18, 2021 ($2.74). Massachusetts's average gas price is 1 cent lower than the national average.

"As the days get longer, the weather gets warmer, and pump prices dip from their record highs, consumers feel more confident about hitting the road," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast director of Public and Government Affairs. "But these lower pump prices could be temporary if the global price of oil increases due to constrained supply."

AAA Northeast's April 18 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 3 cents lower than last week ($4.11), averaging $4.08 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 19 cents lower a month ago ($4.27), and $1.21 higher than this day last year ($2.87).

SCAN ME

Tire Rotation, Hood Vibration, Key-Fobs, Timing Belts

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor
Senior Manager, Public Affairs and Traffic Safety

I have a 2014 Honda CRV AWD LX with 130,000 miles. It has been running great until a few months ago when it started to hesitate and vibrate at about 25 miles per hour. Once I drove above 25 miles per hour it was fine. This happens if the engine is hot or cold. My mechanic tuned it up and it improved but then after a month or so the vibration was back. I also noticed the overall power has diminished even at higher speeds. Could these items be related? Any suggestions?

The typical cause of this vibration is a torque converter issue. At this point rather than replace the torque converter, which is quite costly, start with a transmission fluid change. I have seen some very good results with changing the fluid. Regarding the lack of power at higher speeds, I don't believe these two issues are related. I would start with the basics. Check fuel pump pressure and volume, scan tool data, possible exhaust restriction and excessive combustion chamber deposits. I would also use a fuel additive such as Techron, Seafoam or BG products 44K. These products can help clean fuel injectors and combustion chamber deposits.

I have a 2013 Dodge Grand Caravan with a fuel pump that at times will run continuously until the battery dies. Do you have any suggestions outside of dropping the tank and replacing the fuel pump?

The first place I would look is for a sticking fuel pump relay. Locate the relay in the fuse box (it should be marked) and swap it with another relay. Start the car, let it run, then shut it off. If the fuel pump shuts off, purchase a new relay.

I have a 1998 Cadillac Deville and I was installing a speaker in the trunk and used small alligator clips to power the speaker off another speaker. I went into the car to turn the car ignition on to accessory and nothing happened. No sound from the radio or cassette player so I tried to start the car and a security code came on the dash and the car won't start. I looked in the owner's manual to see if it had a remedy. According to the owner's manual, it said to open the driver's side window and turn on the ignition. When the security light comes on hit the push button door lock and close the door. The security light warning should go off. It didn't and the car won't crank over. The security light keeps coming on when I try to start the car. Help!

Start with disconnecting the speaker you installed. It seems from your description as if the General Motors PASS-KEY system needs to reset. Typically, you turn the key to the on position and wait 10 minutes. After 10 minutes, shut the key off and then try to restart the car.

Here is an age-old question. My GM cars recommend that tire rotation should be crossing the rear tires forward and bringing the front tires straight back. I suspect it's to minimize scalloping of the tires. However, every tire dealer (and even the GM repair departments) insists on rotating front to rear, rear to front same side. I suspect that the repair shops don't want to have to deal with which brand gets what? Anyway, they talk about belt pull, etc. So, what is your opinion on this subject?

When all tires were bias ply, rotation consisted of a X pattern. Once radial tires became popular rotation changed to moving the rear tires to the front and front tires to the rear. This was done to eliminate concerns with possible steel belt damage. Over time that has changed. Since front and rear tires have different tasks, steering, traction and braking, they can wear differently. To maximize tire wear, rotation is helpful. The suggested tire rotation and one adopted by the Tire and Rim association is exactly what your GM owner's manual recommends. This would only vary if the tires were different sizes or a directional design. Depending on the vehicle, the tire pressure monitoring system will also need to be reprogrammed, to identify the new tire locations.

I am wondering if you might know the fix to hood vibration up by the windshield. I hear it, feel it and see it when I drive on the highway at 75 miles per hour. I'm adjusting the hood bumpers to see if that fixes the problem but so far, if that's the fix, it isn't working. Any suggestions?

I would start by making sure you have cured any vibrations in the car first. The visual shake in the hood could be a result of an out-of-balance tire, damaged wheel or even driveline related. My first step would be to check and rebalance the four tires.

I have a 2006 Hyundai Azera and it has been sitting outside in the driveway for almost a year. I had to boost the battery once but didn't drive it. Now I can't drive it because the battery is dead again. Do I need a new battery?

Realistically after the jump start the battery should have been charged on a battery charger. Depending on the battery condition and the battery charger, this could take 6 to 24 hours. More than likely after all this time the battery needs replacement. In addition, the gasoline could have become stale and may cause some drivability issues with the car. Even the brakes could have become rusted after sitting unused for a year. At this point the best thing to do would be to have the car towed to a repair shop so the entire car can be evaluated to insure it is safe.

I have with a 2018 Buick Encore and a so called "Bumper to Bumper Warranty." I purchased the vehicle used on Dec. 10, 2021, from a car dealer with a 90-day Bumper to Bumper Warranty. On or about the 70th day of ownership, and less than 550 miles since purchased, I noticed that the passenger side front bumper was disengaging from the vehicle where the bumper and headlight area merge. I pushed it in, but it soon popped out again. I called the dealer about the problem, and they set me up with an appointment, Feb. 24, 2022, with their service department. They viewed the area where the bumper popped and advised they would get back to me about a solution. Fifteen days later they called and advised that the estimate to fix would cost over $535 and could be more, all of which would be my responsibility to pay. Oddly, the Bumper-to-Bumper Warranty does not cover bumpers. I searched the internet to see if Buick had any service bulletins on this problem but could not find any as the body shop manager at the dealership indicated it was not a rare problem. Do I have any recourse?

The used car Bumper to Bumper warranty typically covers mechanical issues and not body repairs. Buick did issue a technical service bulletin that describes this problem and a repair solution. There was a technical service bulletin issued, but not a recall or warranty extension, so at this point you would be responsible for the repair. That being said, if you purchased the car from a Buick dealer and there shows no previous body repairs, it is worth suggesting that Buick, the dealer and you split the cost of the repair.

From day one the "auto on high beam" feature on my 2019 Acura MDX has worked maybe once that I recall. Whenever I bring the car in for service, I mention it to the dealer, and they tell me "nothing is wrong and we've adjusted the sensitivity." I have a friend who owns the same car and tells me he has no issues and have had rentals with this feature, and it works without issue. I've looked for chat rooms/service bulletins but haven't found any on this problem. Any suggestions? Also, I'm having issues with "auto engine idle." Last time in for service they "rebooted" the module which has helped but this still is very intermittent. Other than this the Acura is a good vehicle.

The system may be operating normally. The auto high beam issue has certain criteria for it to work properly. Some of these include white and red-light sources are not detected ahead, two or more streetlights have not been detected, vehicle speed is above 35 mph. In addition, weather, road conditions and windshield wiper settings may affect system operation. The Idle Stop feature also has certain criteria for proper operation. Some of these include electrical load on the engine (climate control, seat heaters, towing a trailer) as some examples. The system also relies on a fully charged battery. If much of your driving is short distances, the battery may not be fully charged, and the system keeps the engine running to help with electrical demand.

I recently bought a new 2022 Toyota Corolla to replace my 2004 Corolla. On that older car, the gear shifter had positions of 2 and L (besides for the usual P, R, N, D). The new Corolla has B instead of 2 and L. Are these all-similar gear positions? On the old Corolla, I used 2 and L for driving on snow and ice. Was this the correct usage for those gear settings, and can B be used in the same kind of driving situation?

There was a time when some vehicles would have position 2 that would allow for second gear starts. Starting in second gear would minimize wheel spin in slippery weather. The L or low gear position would keep the transmission in the lowest gear position and would have limited use in normal driving. Your new car uses a continually variable automatic transmission with what amounts to an infinite number of gears. The shifter should be left in drive for the best performance and fuel economy. The B position will apply some engine braking which could be useful when driving and you wanted to slow the car without using the brakes, as an example down a steep hill.

I purchased a new car for the first time in 20 years and it has a key-fob to lock and unlock the doors. How long can I expect the battery in my remote key fob to last?

Based on my own experiences I would say a key-fob remote battery will last five years or so, although I have had some last much longer. The only time I have seen shorter life is when the button is held down for a longer period. This could be the fob is in a purse, bag or even in a pocket. Replacing a fob battery is simple and inexpensive and as a preventative measure you could replace it every four-five years. Also keep in mind nearly every car with pushbutton start and a key-fob has a key built into the fob in case of emergencies.

I am considering buying an electric car but would need to rely on public charging. Using an EV charging station found at some store parking lots, how do you use them and please give me a dollar and cents cost for a charge in the city.

Public charging stations can range from free, to a few dollars per hour or per kilowatt charge. Most EV drivers will use a smart phone app such as ChargePoint, EVgo or Electrify America. The exception is Tesla which has their own charging network. I use Chargepoint, it is tied to a credit card, I look at the app for available charging, park and then authorize the machine and plug in the cord to the car. Depending on the vehicle (most that I have tested had a range of 200-250 miles) a full recharge could cost $20-$25 to "refill" the battery. As a comparison looking at gasoline at $4.25 gallon it would cost $10-$15 more to refuel a similar gasoline car.

I would like to know if it's necessary to change the timing belt on my 2014 Honda Pilot. Changing the belt

RMV Encourages License, ID Holders To Become Organ, Tissue Donors

The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) is encouraging individuals to register to become organ and tissue donors as part of National Donate Life Month, which is currently taking place through April 30. Individuals who currently have a Massachusetts driver's license or identification card or are planning to secure one of these credentials can conveniently sign up to be donors at no cost online at Mass.Gov/RMV at Register as an organ donor at the RMV.

Currently, there are 2,791,788 individuals who have active credentials with organ and tissue donor designations.

"The RMV is pleased to help raise awareness for National Donate Life Month by encouraging customers who currently have or are applying for learner's permits, driver's licenses or MA IDs to enroll to become organ and tissue donors," said Registrar of Motor Vehicles Colleen Ogilvie. "These free enrollments, which are largely submitted through nationwide Department of Motor Vehicles, will help save the lives of thousands of individuals currently waiting for organ and tissue transplants."

According to New England Donor Services, over 106,000 people across the country are waiting for a transplant with another person being added to the national wait list every 12 minutes. In addition, as of 2021, according to Donate Life, over 169 million people in the United States are registered as donors, but even then only three in 1,000 people who die can donate afterwards. With more customers enrolling as donors, those on the transplant list are more likely to live, and live enhanced lives.

Individuals can register as an organ donor at any time with the RMV. Many people become organ donors when they apply for or renew their Massachusetts driver's license or ID. Registering as a donor is as simple as checking "yes" on license and identification applications. To sign up and become a donor for free, go to the RMV website at Register as an organ donor at the RMV | Mass.gov.

Customers who register as an organ donor when they apply for or renew their driver's license or ID card will have a heart symbol added to their credential to show that they are an organ donor. If customers enroll at another time, they can order a replacement driver's license or ID card if they want a license/ID with a heart symbol. However, they do not need to obtain a new card as they will be registered with the Donor Registry. Organ donors must reconfirm they wish to be a donor each time they renew their Massachusetts driver's license or ID card.

When individuals register as an organ and tissue donor, they will be entered into the Massachusetts Donor Registry. Though registration is legal consent for donation, it is recommended that individuals discuss their wishes with family and friends.

Massachusetts residents can also register at New England Donor Services at NEDS.org. For more information on registration and donation, visit the frequently asked questions page located at <https://neds.org/organ-donation/>.

is not mentioned in the maintenance booklet that came with the car and my neighbor's mechanic told him it's not necessary unless you do heavy towing or live in a hot climate. Anything other known issues I should look for?

The 2014 Honda Pilot is a little confusing because it lists both a timing chain and timing belt in the engine description. There is in fact a timing belt and the maintenance minder system will display a 4 when the timing belt needs replacement. Your shop is correct that if the vehicle is driven in extreme heat, cold or towing a heavy trailer the belt should be replaced at 60,000 miles. One area that you may want to look at on this vehicle is on the engine the front rocker control valve can leak oil and over time may even cause a drivability issue. Honda also recommends replacing the vehicle's brake fluid every three years to prevent corrosion to the brake system.

I own 2015 Ford F-150 with the Eco-boost engine and only 9,300 miles on it. When stopped at a red light the engine would shut off as it is supposed to and then would restart when gas pedal was applied. Now, it no longer does that. It was checked by a Ford dealership mechanic, but he could find no reason for this. Hoping you know more than they do.

No one should know more about your Ford truck than a Ford technician. For the auto stop system to work certain criteria need to be met. These include engine temperature, engine load (air conditioner on/off), trailer towing, brake light switch and charging system operation. It is possible that with such low mileage on a seven-year-old truck the battery state of charge is low enough that the computer won't signal to shut off the engine. The first step in diagnosing this problem would be to check to make sure the battery is at full charge of at least 12.6 volts.

I have a 2000 Toyota Landcruiser and the air conditioner button is always on when the heat is turned on. It was supposed to turn off and on if you press the button, but it is always on. It always used to work this way. It appears to just be stuck on. How do I make it properly functional again?

The climate control system in your Landcruiser has a diagnostic mode and the diagnostic test should be performed first. The problem could be as simple as a shorted switch or relay, but a diagnostic inspection is the first place to start.

Are the MPG's listed by the manufacturer for their hybrid models realistic? Or would they fall short by every-day driving? Or, in other words, what kind of driving behavior would a driver need to follow in order to meet or get close to the MPG estimates touted by the car manufacturers in the vehicle descriptions?

I have driven many hybrids and found the mileage very realistic. Like any vehicle, mileage is mostly controlled by the driver, quick starts and high speeds will affect mileage. Drive reasonably at the posted speed limit and mileage is easily attainable and sometimes exceeded. Drive a Prius at 80 MPH and you will never get 50 MPG.

My car is a 2018 Volkswagen Jetta with only 12,000 miles on it. I've owned it since 2016 and put maybe 7,000 of those miles on. Recently I've noticed that when I start up the dashboard display (odometer and tachometer) do not light up. Eventually, they will light up, but may (or may not) go back off for a while. I can get them to light by switching on headlights and, yes, it does not appear to affect the daylight running lights. Most recently, I found that if I lower the driver's side window the lights will come on, but they go off as the window is closed! The problem seems to be related to moisture, but I haven't been able to pin it down to the point where I can tell a service tech what's happening. Any idea?

I would suspect some sort of poor electrical ground. At this point a series of voltage drop tests need to be performed as well as a basic test of the battery. When putting the window up and down you are putting more of a load on the electrical system causing voltage to vary.

I just bought a 2021 Jeep and would like to know is there a way to get better fuel mileage. It has the V6 engine, and I am getting around 12/14 miles per gallon in the city and at best 20 miles per gallon on the highway.

I would expect to see about 15 to 16 miles per gallon around town and 22-24 miles per gallon at a steady 60 miles per hour on the highway. The winter gasoline sold this time of year has less energy and you can lose up to 10 percent of your fuel economy. If your Jeep has a remote starter and you use that regularly fuel economy can be reduced dramatically. At this point, check and inflate the tires to the correct specification and look at your own driving habits. Fuel economy can be improved by driving reasonably, easy on the gas and brake and staying at the speed limit. Depending on the mileage on your Jeep it can take up to 10,000 miles for the engine to fully break in.

A recent question made me want to reach out to you. A reader asked how best to deal with a car that will be sitting for six weeks. You said to make sure the battery is charged, tires properly inflated, and add a gas stabilizer. If all goes well, I will be in Florida next winter for five months. What are your recommendations for a car that will sit for that long? It is a 2006 Toyota Camry with 46,000 miles and is very well maintained.

Here is what I did with a car that sat for six months. I changed the oil and filter as well as lubed door locks hinges and just about anything else that moves. Filled the gas tank and added fuel stabilizer and aired up the tires to the maximum amount on the tire (the only time you should do this). I also got four pieces of foam construction insulation about an inch thick and put it under each tire (help prevent flat spots). Put in a moisture absorber (damp rid type product) on an aluminum pie plate to collect any moisture and prevent mildew. Hooked up the battery to a Battery Tender (special battery charger that maintains the battery. I also cleaned and waxed the car and covered the car with a car cover. When I returned the car looked good (maybe a little dust) and ran perfect.

I'm referencing your answer in your column regarding the 2014 Honda transmission issue. My Chevy Colorado has the same issue. I went to my local guy about changing the transmission fluid as you recommend. He said on occasion it's had a negative effect. Are you aware of this possibility?

In older cars changing the transmission fluid on a car that had a lot of varnish buildup could sometimes cause problems. And usually, the owner suspected a problem with the transmission and was hoping a fluid change would help. So, it is assumed that the fluid change caused the problem. If this was my truck and it had a transmission "chuggle" I would change the fluid and add a friction modifier such as Lubeguard or Lucas Transmission Fix and hope for the best.

I have a simple question. I have a 2020 BMW X3. My question is should I rotate the tires? I can't seem to get an answer pro or con.

BMW just states to inspect the tires every 10,000 miles and never mentions a tire rotation. So, in this particular case, I would say based on the factory maintenance, tire rotation is not necessary.

I'm replacing my Lexus RX 300 which has been a good vehicle. I am thinking about a Mercedes and the vehicle I am looking at is the GLE 450. What do you think of this vehicle?

Like all Mercedes vehicles it feels solid both on the road and even when you close the doors. The technology is impressive with just about every advanced driver assistance system available. There were a couple of critiques. Some minor functions are difficult to find and use. It took a couple of minutes to find and adjust the lumbar support. Also, the infotainment system can be a little daunting to operate. The seats once adjusted were quite comfortable and the overall ride and handling were very good for an SUV. I was also please to see this vehicle also has a spare tire.

Regarding your recent diagnosis of the red brake warning light: I had the exact same warning lights with my 2009 Cadillac CTS. Through the warning code the dealer diagnosed the problem as a worn wheel bearing which was replaced and problem was solved. Now I wonder if mechanic ran up bill replacing the brakes or incorrectly diagnosed the problem?

A worn bearing will typically turn on an ABS light, not the red brake warning light. The RED brake warning light will come on with the parking brake or a hydraulic issue related to the braking system.

7.5-acre proposal a "very exciting and historic project" for the city's cemetery department.

"Tonight's proposal is the most significant cemetery expansion that this city has done in decades. It will add over 14,000 burial spaces," Murphy said. "It will also include the city's first cremation niches to maximize some of the challenges the landscape presents, but also provide additional options to residents as well."

As part of the expansion, the city would install more than 3,500 double-depth pre-buried vaults, each of which can hold two caskets plus an urn. Spaces for 650 graves would be added to the cemetery's veterans' section. More than 3,000 niches, each capable of holding two urns, will also be installed.

In addition, a new welcome center and office building would be constructed near the Willard Street entrance to the facility. A new committal building would be constructed near the Chickatawbut Road entrance, where the current cemetery office is located. A boulder fountain would also be installed in that area.

A pergola gathering area with columbarium walls — where the niches for the urns would be located — would be constructed in the new 7.5-acre section of the cemetery. A veterans' memorial wall would be installed near existing veterans' lot within the cemetery and a seating area would be added to the existing part of the cemetery as well.

Murphy said the revenue generated by the project — from the sale of lots and associated burial fees — would pay for its cost. He told councillors each lot in the new area will cost $1,200 plus a $1,000 fee for perpetual maintenance and a $25 fee for the deed. There is also a $1,100 fee for each burial in the lot — that fee could be charged up to three times per lot, twice for casket burials and once for an urn.

The cost for a single lot is currently $850, plus a $500 fee for perpetual care and the $25 deed. The current burial fee is $700.

Currently, lots at Pine Hill are only sold on an as-needed basis. If the expansion project were approved, lots could be sold on a pre-need basis for the first time in decades. Murphy said those sales could begin later this year and he anticipates high demand for the new lots.

"I think there will be a tremendous demand out there, especially because this is really the last spot that the city has for cemetery space," he said. "I think the lack of supply is going to create a pretty substantial demand for the lots."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said the administration's presentation did not include an adequate breakdown of the project's costs. Scott Salvucci, a project manager with the firm Woodard & Curran, provided a breakdown of the costs after Mahoney raised that concern.

According to Salvucci's presentation, the cemetery expansion would cost $13.6 million, including $4.75 million for earthwork, $2.5 million for the installation of burial vaults, $2.5 million for paving and other hard-scaping, $1.25 million for retaining walls, $750,000 for the columbarium walls, $500,000 for landscaping and $500,000 for the boulder fountain and other artwork. The remaining $2.7 million would pay for the welcome center and committal building; those costs were not further broken down.

Mahoney said that the financial presentation did not contain enough information and was only provided to councillors at the finance committee meeting and not beforehand.

"I'm still concerned. This is broken out and there are six lines that are broken out," Mahoney said. "Is everybody OK with that? I'm not because it came to us at 6:30, the first finance meeting, and I've been asking for breakdowns."

"I would have expected a little more detail," she added.

Mahoney later questioned the ratio of graves to niches in the proposal. More and more people are being cremated, she said, and it would make sense to have more niches than burial vaults in the expansion.

Murphy responded that the city would have the ability to add more niches in the future, at Pine Hill and at other cemeteries.

Councillor Nina Liang said she was concerned about inflation and asked if the $16.4 million would include enough funds to account for rising construction costs.

"Labor is still exponentially expensive right now

Councillors Question $16.4M Plan To Expand Pine Hill Cemetery

so are parts...materials and everything," she said. "I am hoping with any construction project we build in contingencies. I would like to know what that contingency amount is and also if we are building in typical construction contingencies or factoring in the fact that everything has increased the last two years."

Salvucci said the costs include a typical construction contingency of approximately 5 to 10 percent. He was confident the contingency would be enough to cover potential increases in costs given how advanced the planning for the project is.

Salvucci also provided a timeline for the project. He said bids will be opened on April 15 and construction could begin in mid-May, likely between Mothers' Day and Memorial Day. The project should be substantially finished by November 2023 though final paving might have to wait until the following spring.

Liang also asked Murphy how long it had been since the city increased its burial fees – which are set by the Cemetery Board of Managers – and suggested they could be raised again in the future to keep up with inflation. Murphy said the new fees were set in April 2021 based on costs at comparable cemeteries but could not say when they were last set prior to that.

"We were far behind, I think, similar cemeteries when we did our analysis, so we actually had to come up a substantial amount," Murphy said. "I'd have to do research to give you a specific answer, but I think it had been sometime since those fees had been increased."

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain asked about maintenance costs at the cemetery moving forward. Murphy said the pre-buried vaults would help reduce operating costs in the future, because graves won't have to be dug when they are needed, while an additional worker might be needed for things like mowing grass and trimming plants.

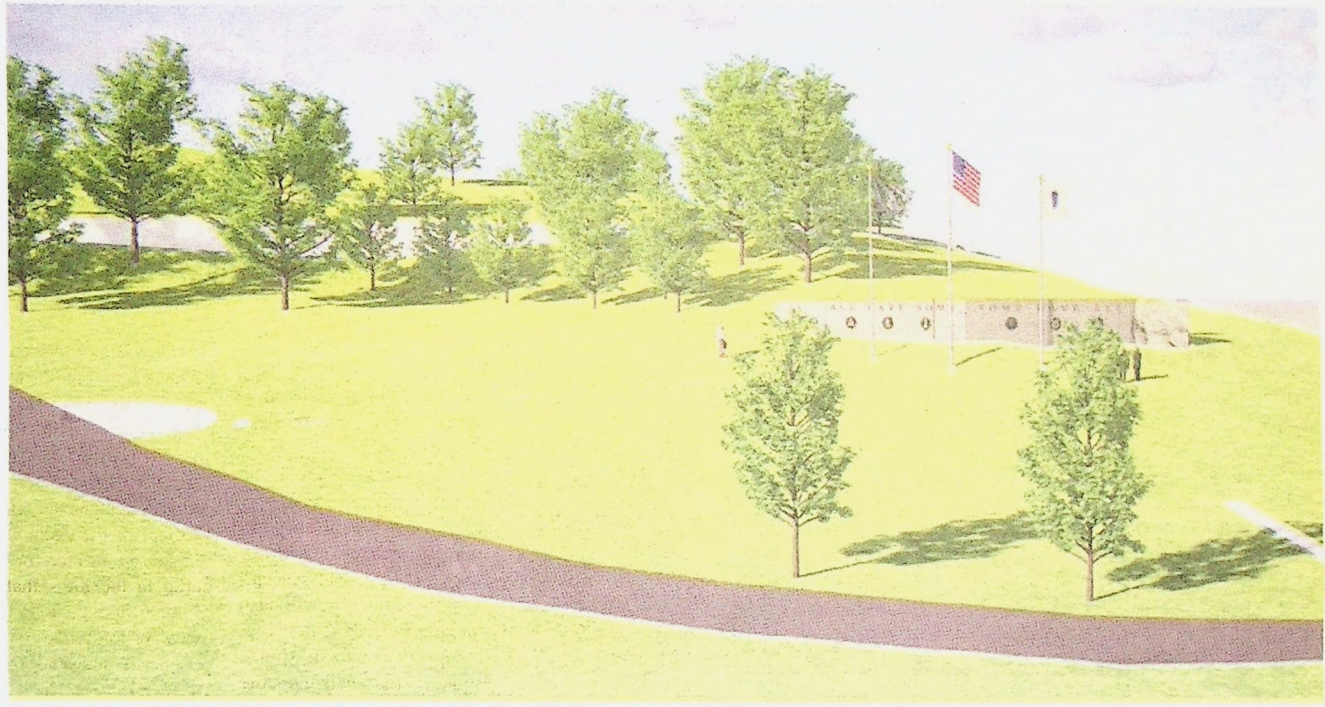

Cain said he was prepared to support the bond request.

"This is a necessary project," he said. "Having these available at Pine Hill, I think, is a big deal. I'm certainly in support of it and I appreciate the presentation tonight."

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris said he knows Quincy residents who have struggled to find places in Quincy to bury family members. He made a motion to pass the bond out of committee.

IMPROVEMENTS to the Willard Street entrance of Pine Hill Cemetery would include a new gate and landscaping, as seen here. A new welcome center and office would also be built in the vicinity of this entrance as part of the $16.4 million project.

"I'm thrilled with the fact that we're opening up more spaces for our residents," Harris said. "I respect my fellow councillors who have questions about this but at this point I'm satisfied, so I'm going to make a motion to approve."

After Harris spoke, Ward 2 Councillor Anthony Andronico said he would like to see further details about the project before voting on it.

"I absolutely believe the city should be pursuing the expansion while at the same time I do understand some of the concerns that my colleagues have raised about some of the details in that and I do agree with them that I would really like to see a little bit more of a breakdown on what those costs are going to," Andronico said.

"We do have a duty to the taxpayers to fully explore the options before us and I would love to see maybe another meeting on this."

Harris then withdrew his motion to approve the bond and said the item would stay in committee.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr., who is the chairperson of the finance committee, said he would provide the administration with a list of questions from his colleagues that could be answered before the next committee meeting is held. That meeting has not been scheduled.

COLUMBARIUM walls – which would hold niches for urns – would be located in the new 7.5-acre section of Pine Hill Cemetery. Seen here is a pergola seating area that would be located near those walls.

2-foot-deep wood structure on a wooden pedestal about 5 feet off the ground. It has a glass door that opens revealing two shelves stocked with pet snacks. "PET PANTRY" is printed in black letters at the top and the structure's white paint is adorned with an array of dog paw prints.

Troop leader Courtney Joyce explained the troop was inspired to create the pet pantry because of the pandemic where there was a spike in the number of dog adoptions and, when people started to return to work, a large number of those adopted were surrendered to animal shelters.

"Through the pandemic, people were adopting dogs because they were home a lot," she said. "Also, they didn't have a lot of money so people needed a lot of resources and help with assistance for themselves. People resources are available but unfortunately, not always pet resources."

Joyce said the troop was researching a community service project for the city and settled on creating a pet pantry to give some help to dog owners with a place to store and provide free pet snacks.

"The troop decided if we can provide a pet pantry, then people can come and take what they need and others can leave what they don't need, or what they want to leave," she said.

Joyce added that the pet pantry is also a way for the community to help one another where pet owners — or anyone — can leave donations of pet snacks in the pantry, as sort of a pay-it-forward, self-sustaining project.

"The (girl scout) project has to go beyond just a community service project," she said. "It has to be a sustainable project that lasts and has to be passed on."

The troop started planning for the pet pantry last spring. After receiving approval from the park department, they got to work on the project.

Money raised from Girl Scout Cookie sales was used to purchase the materials including wood. A donation drive was held to collect pet snacks to stock the pantry.

Joyce noted that although the soaring price of the wood ate into their budget, the troop was still able to get the materials they needed.

The troop members, all in grades four and five, did all work, from design to installation.

"They didn't buy it, they built it all from hand," Joyce said. "They cut the wood, measured it, screwed it all together, waterproofed it, painted it, and put on the decorations."

With the pantry completed, the girls set out to install it at the dog park that opened nearly two years ago.

"They rented an auger to try dig a hole which isn't easy because the dog park is all on granite," said Joyce. "It hit rock quite a few times, but we overcame it. Girl Scouts can overcome anything."

The pantry was attached the day of the unveiling, fully stocked with dog snacks, ready to serve.

Joyce said the project was the troop's Bronze Award community service project for grades four and five. The Silver Award is for grades six through eight, and the Gold Award is for grades nine through high school.

"The Bronze Award is a huge honor," she said. "It's where it all starts out; where they find issues in the community and figure how they are going to address those issues."

Mayor Thomas Koch expressed his pride and appreciation to the troop.

"I can't tell you how proud I am," he said. "Coming out of COVID a little bit, it's great to see more community events, particularly when dealing with the kids. Scouting is always a great inspiration for both girls and boys. For these girls to come up with a project like this, and to get it done, they should be proud of themselves. It will be great asset to the park here."

Joyce echoed her pride.

"I'm very proud of them. They took this on their own and they took off with it. I think they are very proud as well."

Invited by the troop to the event was Boston Saints & Littles, dog breeders Scott and Kathryn Logan, who brought several Saint Bernard puppies and mini-Labradoodles that are up for adoption.

"The Labradoodles are 100 percent hypoallergenic. They are ready to go their forever homes," Kathryn Logan said.

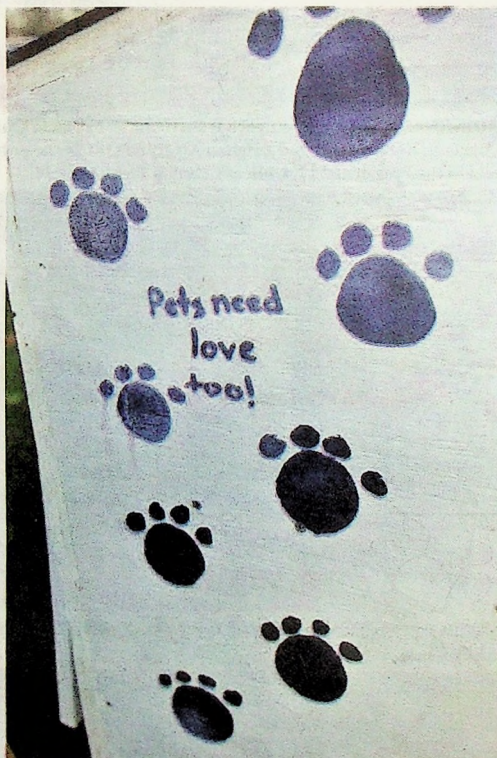

If anyone is interested in a pup they can find out more information by emailing the Logans at kathscottlogan@gmail.com or follow on Facebook at Boston Saints and Littles.

Maddie Bailey (8 Goals, 3 Assists) Powers Presidents' Offense

By TOM JOYCE

A hot start propelled the Quincy High girls' lacrosse team in its latest rivalry contest April 14.

The Presidents had a strong first half which gave them all of the goals they needed to win. The Presidents faced their in-city rival, the North Quincy Raiders, at Creedon Field on North Quincy High School's campus. The Presidents took the lead in the first half and never relinquished it. They won this one 17-4. With the win, the Presidents improved to 4-2 on the season. With the loss, the Raiders fell to 3-3 overall.

At halftime, the game was on pace to be a shutout. The Presidents led 8-0 after the first 25 minutes of play. So while the Raiders offense had some strong plays in the second half, they weren't able to overcome the deficit.

Senior Kathleen Higgins struck first for the Presidents; she buried a goal out in front of the net about five minutes into the contest. Senior captain Maddie Bailey, the team's leading scorer of the game, had the assist.

About a minute later, Bailey scored her first goal of the game; with 18:59 left in the first, she scored a goal while charging the net. It wouldn't take the Presidents long to follow up on that one; junior Delia Nichol had a goal while in motion with 18:11 remaining. This gave the Presidents a 3-0 lead in fewer than two minutes.

Midway through the first half, the Presidents had another scoring burst. This time, they netted three goals in a one-minute span.

Bailey scored two of those goals: first with 14:46 remaining and another goal on a sidarm shot with

Mike Loughnane Boys' Basketball Player Of The Year

By TOM JOYCE

Mike Loughnane did a lot of winning this past winter.

The Quincy resident finished up his standout career on the Boston College High boys' basketball team, and he recently earned an award for his performance.

The 6-foot-3 star forward averaged 27 points per game for the Eagles as they went undefeated (25-0) and won the MIAA Division 1 state championship game 71-59 over Newton North.

As a result of his strong senior year, Loughnane was named the Four Deep Sports Talk 2022 boys' basketball player of the year. Four Deep Sports Talk is a weekly high school sports talk radio show on WARA-AM radio in Attleboro, Massachusetts. It covers the area that used to be known as the MIAA South section before the MIAA switched over to a statewide playoff format.

Loughnane said he was excited to earn the award.

"It means a lot," he said. "It means that a lot of the work I was putting in over the past year paid off and I was able to be with some of the better players in the state. I was lucky enough to win it. It's a testament to our team this year and how great our teammates were."

Loughnane said that his teammates' work ethics stood out and that their hard work in the offseason was a major reason for their success.

"I think a lot of it was our work in the offseason," he said. "A lot of us worked out together in the mornings and the afternoons. That was a huge part of it. We felt really prepared for the season. We felt like we were able to go into the season and be prepared for every 13:46 left. Between those two goals, however, sophomore Grace Connor made it a 5-0 game with a goal. Bailey had the assist on this one.

It was Connor's first of two goals in the first half. Her second goal came with 9:51 left in the half after a foul against the Raiders; and with 9:00 left, senior captain Chloe Lynch netted another goal as she rushed toward the net.

Bailey led the way for the Presidents with eight goals in this one while Nichol finished second with three goals. Additionally, Higgins and Connor each had two goals while Lynch and junior Mairead Folan each added one.

While the Raiders weren't able to make the comeback in this one, the team put up four goals in the second half. Sophomore midfielder Autumn O'Campos led their offensive effort with two goals. Junior attacker Kendall Kazmowski, and senior midfielder and captain Jamie McAleavy each had one goal as well.

The win in this one put the Presidents on a three-game winning streak to start the week. The streak began with a 14-6 win over the Whitman-Hanson Panthers on the road on April 9. It continued the following week when the Presidents defeated Pembroke 14-5 on the road April 12. The Pembroke win came two days before they played North Quincy.

The next game for the Presidents will take place on Monday, April 25 against team and every opponent. And then the other thing is we had a lot of fun playing together. We were never too tight before or during a game. We stayed loose and I think that was huge for us, being in tight situations we were able to keep playing and have fun."

In addition to helping the Eagles win a Div. 1 state title this season, Loughnane secured a rare place in team history; he became the fourth player in school history to eclipse the 1,000 career point mark.

Loughnane said that polishing his skills over the years and building a good repertoire with his teammates were a couple of the keys to his success.

"I would definitely say preparation in the offseason and even in the season, kind of just maintaining skills," he said. "That was definitely the key. A lot of it was just working on shots or individual stuff, but also working out with the rest of my team and getting to know them. That was a huge part of it. I would say the preparation that went into everything was definitely the key."

Adding to the uniqueness of Loughnane's career at BC High was his familiarity with the team's head coach: his father, Bill Loughnane.

Loughnane said that he enjoyed being able to play on his father's team.

"It was great," he said. "It was an interesting adjustment at first. Obviously, it's different than any other coach I've ever had before or will have ever again. It was awesome to be able to close it out the way we did. It was one of my favorite experiences in basketball, being able to play for him."

Loughnane will continue his basketball career at Phillips Exeter Academy (Exeter, New Hampshire) in the 2022-2023 school year, competing in the New England Preparatory School Athletic Council (NEPSAC). The following season, he hopes to play college basketball but hasn't committed anywhere yet.

Loughnane isn't the only Quincy resident who was a contender for one of these awards, either. There was at least one Quincy connection in every category.

North Quincy High basketball standout Daithi Quinn was one of the four players nominated to be Four Deep's boys' basketball player of the year. The sophomore averaged a team-high 23.1 points per game for the Raiders this past winter; he also helped the team reach the Round of 8 in the MIAA Division 2 statewide playoff tournament.

Additionally, Loughnane's father, BC High coach Bill Loughnane was one of the four finalists for boys' basketball coach of the year. Loughnane became the 24th boys' basketball coach in MIAA history to win at least 500 games. The award ended up going to Norwood High boys' basketball Kristen McDonnell; one of the few women to be a boys' varsity basketball head coach in the state, she led her team to an MIAA Division 2 state title appearance where her team fell to Malden Catholic.

And on the girls' side, there were two North Quincy connections.

North Quincy girls' basketball star Orlagh Gormley was one of the four finalists for the show's girls' basketball player of the year. Gormley set a school record with 56 points in one game this season; she also helped the Raiders reach the Round of 8 in the MIAA Division 2 statewide playoff tournament. The award went to Oliver Ames High senior Caroline Peper, who helped her team win the MIAA Div. 2 state championship over Norwood.

And North Quincy girls' basketball coach Matt Ramponi was a finalist for Four Deep's girls' basketball coach of the year award. A first-year head coach, Ram-poni coached his team to a perfect record in the regular season (22-0); they finished the season with a 24-1 record. The girls' coach of the year award went to Whitman-Hanson coach Mike Costa; his team made it to the Final Four of the MIAA Division 2 playoffs. The Raiders beat Whitman-Hanson 60-55 in their lone matchup of the season on February 1.

The Four Deep Sports Talk basketball player of the year awards show will take place at Adria Restaurant and Banquet Facility in East Bridgewater on Saturday, April 23 (6:00 p.m. start time). Loughnane will be unable to attend the in-person ceremony, but he accepted his trophy earlier in the week.

Quincy High's Sabrina Egan To Run For Westfield State University

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL senior Sabrina Egan (center), pictured alongside her parents Christopher and Lisa Egan, recently committed to running cross country and track for Westfield State University next year. Sabrina will major in athletic training. Sabrina has been a four-year member of the Quincy/North Quincy cross country and spring track & field programs, while competing for two-years with the winter track & field team. She was awarded the Team Sportsmanship Award from this year's cross country and winter track seasons.

Quincy's Ryan Doherty, Jair Whyte Commit To Division I Soccer Programs

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL seniors Ryan Doherty (left) and Jair Whyte (right) recently signed their National Letters of Intent to continue their academic and athletic careers at Division I institutions. Ryan, pictured alongside his uncle, John Porter, will be headed to Bryant University to major in business while playing for the men's soccer program. Ryan had a standout season this past fall, posting 16 goals and 4 assists. He was also recognized as a Patriot League All-Star. Bryant University recently joined the America East Conference as its newest member institution. Jair, pictured alongside his father, Conrad and step-mother, Monique, will be off to Merrimack College. Jair will focus his studies in business while competing for the men's soccer team. Merrimack is a member of the Northeast Conference. Both Ryan and Jair played integral roles for the Quincy High boys' soccer program, which qualified for the MIAA State Tournament this past fall season.

NQHS's Adelin Chan Selected NHS Scholarship Semifinalist

The National Honor Society (NHS) announces. Adelin (Addy) Chan, a senior at North Quincy High School and member of NHS, has been selected as an NHS Scholarship semifinalist.

Since 1946, more than $21 million in scholarships have been awarded to outstanding NHS senior members to support college access and student success. The scholarship program is supported by the parent organization of NHS, the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

In the 100+ years since NHS was founded in 1921, members have been making a difference in their schools and communities, and the NHS Scholarship is NASSP's way of recognizing ing the most exceptional of these student leaders. Recipients are chosen based on their demonstrated work to support the four pillars of NHS: scholarship, service, leadership, and character.

"Addy exemplifies the ideas of National Honor Society through her dedication to her studies and her community. Addy's participation in community outreach programs dedicated to improving the lives of others is a demonstration of her exceptional character. I am not surprised by the NASSP's decision to award Addy with this scholarship," said Cara Pekarcik, who serves as the NHS Adviser at North Quincy High School.

At North Quincy, Chan has exemplified the pillars of NHS through her participation in school based activities such as Unicef Club, Academic Decathlon, Engineering Club, and Robotics. Addy also contributes to her community through her activities with Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI). This fall, she will attend Cornell University to study biomedical engineering.

NCSO Welcomes New Comfort Dog K9 Officer

Sheriff Patrick McDermott announces the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office has brought in a new colleague to its ranks, and this one has already jumped in paws-first.

Eddie, a new comfort therapy dog, was recently added to the office's K9 unit, where he will be deployed to provide comfort and assurance to residents of Norfolk County assisted by his handler and partner, Officer Michael Monaghan.

"It's a reality of our line of work that we often interact with people who have been through a lot," said Sheriff McDermott. "Comfort dogs like Eddie are able to help people feel a little calmer and get some much needed comfort and reassurance. Eddie has only been on the job for less than a week, and he's already making a huge difference to residents across Norfolk County."

The Sheriff's Office held a contest among area kindergarten classes to come up with a name for their newest K9 colleague, and over 1,500 submissions from 35 schools were received. In the end, Eddie was chosen as a combination of a few favorites - Teddy, Edward, and Buddy - which were submitted by kindergartners at Jefferson Elementary and Parmenter Elementary Schools in Franklin; Wollas-ton Elementary and Lincoln Hancock Schools in Quincy, and Elm St. and Old Post Road Schools in Walpole. The Sheriff's Office and Eddie will be celebrating with the winning classes, and he will soon be touring around the county to visit with all of the classes that participated.

Comfort dogs like Eddie are trained to help support people's mental health. They can be particularly helpful in recovering from moments of trauma, such as those experienced by first responders, victims, and others, but are also used to provide a calming presence to anyone who wishes to pet or interact with them.

Eddie underwent a rigorous training through Professional Canine Services out of Middleboro and received certifications in as a Therapy Dog and Emotional Support K-9. He is a lab mix who was rescued from a shelter in Florida before being brought to Massachusetts for training and employment.

Eddie will be visiting schools, senior residences, hospitals, and other locations throughout Norfolk County, as well as being on call to respond in moments of crisis or trauma.

The Sheriff's Office has created an Instagram account for Eddie for anyone interested in following his adventures throughout the county. He can be found on Instagram at @EddieTheComfortDog.

Eight Units Proposed On Copeland Street

By SCOTT JACKSON

A developer has proposed constructing a three-story, eight-unit residential building on Copeland Street, a project panned by neighbors during a recent public hearing.

The developer, CPLD ST LLC, has proposed constructing the new building at 201 Copeland St. The property contains 11,745 square feet of land in a Residence B zoning district. A single-family home is presently located on site.

The Planning Board held a public hearing on the proposal on April 13 and is slated to take up the matter again on June 8. The proponent is also scheduled to appear before the Zoning Board of Appeals on April 26. The developer needs zoning relief for setbacks on all four sides, minimum lot area per dwelling unit, green space per dwelling unit, and parking, according to the application submitted to the Planning Board.

The proposed building would include a garage on the first floor with the eight residential units spread among the two upper floors. Seven of the units would have three bedrooms each while the eighth unit would have a single bedroom.

"The goal is to have families move into the neighborhood," said Kathleen Heyer, the applicant's attorney.

Tim Johnson, the architect of the building, said it has been designed to use electricity, not natural gas, for heating, cooling and cooking.

"We want to get off fossil fuels," he said. "This is where the world is going, and this building will march to that drummer."

The garage on the ground floor of the building would have room for 16 cars, with no additional parking on site. Access to the garage would be provided by a driveway that would be located roughly where a driveway currently sits on site. The developer has also proposed a drop-off and pick-up area adjacent to the building that would be accessed via the private way that serves the three homes on the left-hand side of the building as viewed from Copeland Street. Representatives for the developer said they presently have no right to use that private way.

Members of the Planning Board raised several concerns about the proposal.

"It's too many units and it's too tight," said Richard Meade, the board's chairperson.

Members Kimberly

Bielan and Gregory Galvin both expressed concern about the developer's plan for trash removal. The building would be served by two 96-gallon trash bins and two 96-gallon bins for recycling, which would be hauled away once a week by the city's trash and recycling contractor.

"I have a family of two and I know that we use a full trash bin and recycling bin, so I think that that has to be addressed," Bielan said. "I just don't see how those bins practically work."

Bielan also asked if the applicant would have any parking spaces for guests, to which Heyer replied, "Our belief is that not every unit is going to have two cars." Bielan said the lack of guest parking is a concern of hers.

"That would be a concern for me just because I know it's tight over there," she said. "There's not really street parking in that area."

Another concern raised by board members was the lack of green space included in the project. John Kelly said the proposal was "not very kid friendly."

A half dozen neighbors raised concerns about the project during the hearing as well, including residents living in all three of the homes served by the private way to the left of 201 Copeland St. Those residents said they never heard from the developer prior to the Planning Board hearing.

Mary Fernandez, one of those homeowners, said the project was too big for the site and that traffic is already bad enough in the area.

"It's just too small of an area for that big of a complex. It's a one-family house - maybe knock it down and build another one-family house or something," Fernandez said. "In the morning, to try to get out of the driveway is like a nightmare. You sit here, it's like you're getting onto the Southeastern Expressway. It's horrible. I don't see how that's going to help us by putting all those people over there."

Veronica Bertrand, the president board of trustees for the condominium building next door at 195 Copeland St., noted the 12 units in her building only have two bedrooms each. Each unit has two parking spaces and there are another 10 spaces on the property for guests to park.

"When you look...at what they want to squeeze in there, it just looks so huge. I can't even think of another word," Bertrand said. "And, they're right on the sidewalk. Our townhouse building has a setback off of the street. We have a garden area out front. We have almost 20 feet before you get to the front of our building."

Councillor Anne Mahoney spoke against the proposal as well, saying it is too big.

"This is a single-family home, it is an eyesore, it does need to become something else; however, they are asking for eight units and three bedrooms for each one," she said. "To suggest that most people won't have more than one car - many people who are families with older kids have three cars. This is not an area in which you can jump on a train. There are buses, but not many people do that."

During the public hearing, one person, who lives on Hancock Street, spoke in favor of the proposal. She said the new residential building would represent an improvement over the current single-family home on site.

OBITUARIES

Charles F. Reid, 81

Charles F. "Charlie" Reid, of Abington, formerly of Quincy, died April 11, 2022 at the age of 81.

Charlie's grandchildren were the greatest joy of his life. He never missed a game, recital or special occasion because he loved to spend time with his family. Charlie also enjoyed traveling and reading. He was an avid NASCAR fan and always looked forward to the racing season. Charlie's favorite hobby was adding to his impressive die cast car and truck collection. For many years, Charlie worked as an auto body specialist.

He was the beloved husband of Lucy P. (Pascarella) Reid. Loving father of Patricia Dillane and her husband John of Abington; and Laura Julian and her husband Michael of Whitman.

CHARLES F. REID

Proud "Pa" of Matthew Dillane and his wife Shayna; Krista Dillane; Halle Julian; and Tommy Julian. Brother of Elizabeth Coronella and her husband Anthony of Bridgewater; Marie Foley and her husband Steven of Weymouth; James Reid and his wife Terry of Conneaut Lake, PA; the late Thomas Reid; the late Joseph Reid; and the late Laura Reid. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Relatives and friends were respectfully invited to greet the family during the visiting hours on Tuesday 4/19 in the McDonald Keohane Funeral Home South Weymouth at 809 Main St. (Rte 18 opp. So. Shore Hospital). Relatives and friends will gather in the funeral home at 9:45 a.m. on Wednesday 4/20 prior to the Funeral Mass in St. Bridget's Church, Abington at 10:30 a.m. Burial in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Donations in memory of Charlie may be made to the Alzheimers Assn., MA Chapter, 309 Waverley Oaks Rd., Waltham, MA 02452.

See Keohane.com for directions and online condolences.

Joseph L. Donovan, 91

Joseph L. Donovan, age 91, a lifelong Quincy resident, died peacefully, Wednesday, April 13, 2022, in the comfort of his home, in the loving care of his family.

Joseph was born in Quincy, to the late James P. and Leona L. (O'Brien) Donovan. He was a graduate of the former Saint John's Grammar School in Quincy in 1945, Boston College High School, Class of 1949, and received his Business Administration in Management degree from Boston College, Class of 1953.

He had a distinguished career with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for forty-seven years and served as the Assistant Commissioner of the MA Highway Department, now the Department of Transportation. He was active in various professional associations including the American Association of State Highway Transportation Officials (AASHTO) and American Association of Highway Officials North Atlantic States (AHONAL).

As a young man, Joe owned and operated the former Imperial Insurance Agency in Quincy for ten years. He was also the founder of an international consulting firm, Joseph L. Donovan Associates, which he operated for over thirty years.

Joseph was a proud veteran of the Korean War having served in the U.S. Army and was a member of the Amvets #3 in Boston.

He was a man of great faith and a lifelong active member and longtime daily communicant at Saint John the Baptist Parish in Quincy. He was a member of the former Saint John's Holy Name Society and a lifelong member of the Quincy Knights of Columbus.

For all his adult life, Joe

had an enduring passion for politics and civic affairs. He loved helping people and finding solutions to solve problems to everyone's satisfaction. He was involved in countless political campaigns ranging from presidential elections to ward, mayoral, city and state contests. Starting in the 1950s, he was actively involved with the Young Democrats of Quincy and later with the state Democratic Committee.

Locally, he served on the Board of Directors of the Quincy City Club and was Chairman of the Quincy Heart Fund. In Boston, he served as the Chairman of the United Fund and was the vice-president of the South Shore Boston College Club. Joe was also a lifelong member of the Quincy Yacht Club.

Joe was dedicated to his family and friends and was especially devoted to the care of his late mother, Leona. He loved to travel and since the 1960s hosted many family vacations in the Caribbean, Puerto Rico, and most recently Aruba. He also enjoyed yachting in the British Virgin Islands.

Beloved husband for seventeen years of his dear wife and best friend, Delia A. "Dolly" (Santagata) Donovan. Joe and Dolly had known each other for fifty-two years and he was extremely dedicated to her care, comfort, and happiness.

One of six siblings, he was the devoted brother of Marguerite A. Donovan of West Yarmouth, Leona D. Magnarelli of Hingham and Martha's Vineyard, and was predeceased by James P. Donovan, Elizabeth J. Pare, and C. Maureen Duane. Joe was the loving uncle of twelve nieces and nephews, twenty-seven great nieces and nephews, and seven great great nieces and nephews.

Memorial Visitation will be held at the Sweetney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave, Quincy, on Thursday, April 21, from 3 - 5 p.m. Relatives and friends are invited to attend. The family requests that those attending Joe's services wear a mask or face covering. A Funeral Mass will be celebrated in Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy, on Friday, April 22, at 10:30 a.m. Interment, with military honors, to follow at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Joseph's memory may be made to Saint John the Baptist Parish, c/o 556 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

You are invited to visit thesweeneybrothers.com or call 617-472-6344.

Thomas M. Ferris, Sr., 81

Thomas M. Ferris, Sr., age 81, of Weymouth, died peacefully, Saturday, April 16, 2022, at the Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, surrounded by his loving family.

Tom was born in Quincy, to the late Michael and Catherine T. (McAuley) Ferris. Raised and educated in Quincy, he was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1958. He lived in Weymouth for over fifty years, previously in Quincy.

Tom served in the United States Air Force, as an Airman 1/c, during the early stages of the Vietnam War and received the Air Force Longevity Service Ribbon and the Good Conduct Medal.

He was employed as a supervisor for over thirty years at General Motors in Framingham and retired many years ago.

Tom was an avid sports fan, especially cheering for the New England Patriots and Boston Red Sox. He enjoyed bowling, playing horseshoes and loved walking with his dog, "Brodie". Tom was a gifted handyman, always willing to help others with their projects.

Most of all, he was dedicated to his family, especially his grandchildren, supporting all their activities and accomplishments.

Beloved husband of the late Phyllis L. (Pizzi) Ferris. Devoted father of Steven

THOMAS M. FERRIS, SR.

M. Ferris and his wife Rachael of Weymouth, James M. Ferris and his wife Theresa of Boston, and the late Thomas M. Ferris, Jr.

Loving Papa of Jordan, Catherine, Christine, Erin, and Emily.

One of seven siblings, he was the dear brother of Bernadette Fanning and her husband Joseph of Maine, David A. Ferris and his wife Marie of Hanover, Paul M. Ferris and his wife Terry of Abington, Theresa C. Macaluso and her husband James of Abington, and was predeceased by Kathleen A. Burns and her surviving husband Edwin of Whitman, and Michael R. Ferris and his surviving wife Jacqueline of Sterling.

Brother-in-law of Gerri P. Daigle of Weymouth and her late husband, Larry, and the late Robert M. Pizzi.

Tom is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours will be held at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1

Independence Ave., Quincy, on Sunday, April 24, from 2 – 5 p.m. Relatives and friends are invited to attend. A Funeral Mass will be celebrated in Immaculate Conception Parish, 720 Broad St., Weymouth, on Monday, April 25, at 10:30 a.m. Interment to follow at Mount Hope Cemetery, Weymouth.

For those who wish, donations in Tom's memory can be made to Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758516, Topeka, Kansas 66675-8516.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Temper your typical Aries urge to charge into a situation and demand answers. Instead, let the Lamb's gentler self emerge to deal with a problem that requires delicacy.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are aware of what's going on, so continue to stand by your earlier decision, no matter how persuasive the counterarguments might be. Money pressures soon will ease.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) By all means, have fun and enjoy your newly expanded social life. But don't forget that some people are depending on you to keep promises that are very important to them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You need to wait patiently for an answer to a workplace problem and not push for a decision. Remember: Time is on your side. A financial matter needs closer attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You now have information that can influence that decision you planned to make. But the clever Cat will consult a trusted friend or family member before making a major move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Good news: You're finding that more doors are opening for you to show what you can do, and you don't even have to knock very hard to get the attention you're seeking.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your gift for creating order out of chaos will help you deal with a sudden rush of responsibilities that would threaten someone less able to balance his or her priorities.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Congratulations. Your energy levels are coming right back up to normal — just in time to help you tackle some worthwhile challenges and make some important choices.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The sage Sagittarian should demand a full explanation of inconsistencies that might be cropping up in what had seemed to be a straightforward deal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A conflict between obligations to family and to the job can create stressful problems. Best advice: Balance your dual priorities so that one doesn't outweigh the other.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't guess, speculate or gossip about that "mystery" situation at the workplace. Bide your time. An explanation will be forthcoming very soon.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Boredom might be creeping in and causing you to lose interest in a repeat project. Deal with it by flipping over your usual routine and finding a new way to do an old task.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can warm the coldest heart with your lyrical voice and bright smile. You find yourself at home, wherever you are.

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD —We thought it was unusual that Bruce Willis had seven films that went straight to video last year. Even stranger, nine more are going straight to video this year, starting with "Fortress: Sniper's Eye" this month. Best guess is that Willis was diagnosed with aphasia two years ago. Aphasia robs you of the ability to communicate, speak, write and understand language, both verbal and written. It's often caused by a stroke or head injury. In our column last July, we wrote, "Willis must have hit the pandemic running." At the time, he'd already had five films completed and was shooting four more simultaneously. We now realize he must have known his diagnosis. Since then, he's completed eight more films going directly to video. Willis has had great hits like the "Moonlighting" TV series and the "Die Hard" movie franchise.

Was "West Side Story" on Steven Spielberg's bucket list? He revealed, "Over the last 40 years of my career, if not longer, I've always said a musical was the one thing I haven't done." However, Spielberg admitted that the musical numbers were harder to shoot than the beach landing in "Saving Private Ryan," which may have colored his decision. But there's still another genre on his bucket list... "One genre I haven't tackled yet is a Western. So, who knows, maybe I'll be putting on spurs one day." He then added, "I have a few in development right now!" Spielberg says he'll never direct another musical, even though he'll be producing, with Oprah Winfrey and Quincy Jones, the musical version of "The Color Purple," the 1985 film he directed that made Oprah a movie star. They've already lined up Taraji P. Henson to play Shug Avery.

Original "West Side Story" Oscar winner Rita Moreno recently voiced she felt Natalie Wood should not have been cast as Maria, adding, "I hate that, again, Maria isn't being represented by a Puerto Rican actress." Natalie Wood was cast for four big reasons: 1) She was a huge star, and they raised a lot of money on her name; 2) Maria was very similar to Wood's role in "Rebel Without a Cause," opposite James Dean; 3) She was a smash opposite Warren Beatty in "Splendor in the Grass"; and 4) The original film made six times its cost, while the 2021 version is still $25 million short of its cost. In the new film version, Moreno plays Valentina, the widow of an older Jewish man who runs the candy store Tony lives under, and the Jets, who've demonstrated their hatred for Puerto Ricans, hang out in HER store. We'd say that's more of a liberty than a white girl playing Maria. Ouchie chihuahua!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Reproduction Table— Sometimes a reproduction of an antique is worth almost as much as the original antique. Wallace Nutting (1861-1941) was a collector, expert, photographer, furniture maker, author and an important part of the Colonial Revival in the U.S. He went to Harvard, married and started taking photographs of the New England scenery. Soon he furnished his home with authentic antique American furniture, using the furnishings as props in pictures he staged with men and women dressed in Colonial clothes. The pictures were black and white, but he hired colorists to turn the pictures into color photos. He sold millions of copies that soon hung in the average home. The furniture was admired, and he soon made accurate copies to sell to the public. This, too, was a success. He also wrote books about New England, furniture and history. A 20th-century reproduction Nutting tavern table was sold by Garths Auctioneers and Appraisers a few years ago for $469. It is short, has an apron, turned legs and a box stretcher. This type of table was used as a serving table in the tap room of Colonial taverns.

Q: Are old milk bottles worth much? I have a half-pint glass milk bottle from Kinnett's Dairies in Columbus, Georgia. It's embossed "sealed 01-11-14," which is Jan. 11, 1914, and means it's 107 years old. I've had it about 20 years, and it's in very good condition. What do you think it's worth?
A: The numbers on your milk bottle aren't the date it was made. Kinnett's Dairies was not founded until the 1920s. However, the numbers identify the manufacturer of the bottle, Thatcher Glass Manufacturing Co. of Elmira, New York. States required milk bottles to be labeled with the manufacturer's name, trademark or an identifying number. Numbers were assigned by the states, but not all states used the same numbers. Thatcher Glass Manufacturing Co. was given the number "1" in Wisconsin, "11" in Maine, and "14" in Michigan. The company used "1-11-14" on its milk bottles so it would meet the requirements of all three states. The word "sealed" guarantees the bottle holds the volume of liquid listed on it. Most embossed bottles were made before the 1930s, when pyro glazed (applied color) labels became common. Kinnett's was sold to Parmalat in 1998. Embossed half-pint milk bottles sell for $10 to $15. Some pyro glazed bottles sell for higher prices. Clever logos or sayings add value.

Strange BUT TRUE

- Queen Elizabeth II is the only person in all of Britain allowed to legally drive without a license.
- Charles Darwin once conducted a study to discover whether more people with brown hair existed because they were more dependable and likely to settle down and get married. The results were inconclusive.
- In Australia, Speedos are called "Buddy Smugglers."
- In the 1940s during World War II, interest in continental knitting, or knitting with the yarn in one's left hand, decreased because of its origins in Germany, while English knitting, or knitting with the yarn in the right hand, gained popularity.
- Many of us will not be surprised to learn that approximately five months of a person's life is spent waiting in a car at red lights.
- Looking to retire at age 65? You might want to reconsider, as scientists have noted that employees should keep working until they turn 80, but the good news is that for optimal productivity, they should also only work 25 hours a week.

- The Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan denounced the Beatles as atheistic, and Klan members picketed the band's concerts during their 1966 U.S. tour.
- 7UP was originally called "Bib-Label Lithiated Lemon-Lime Soda" and, until 1948, contained the mood-stabilizing drug lithium citrate. One theory claims its abbreviated moniker originated from its seven ingredients — sugar, carbonated water, essence of lemon and lime oils, citric acid, sodium citrate and lithium citrate, with "UP" referring to the lithium-induced mood lift.
- Speaking of product name changes, L'Oreal was founded as the French Harmless Hair Dye Company.
- A 1991 study revealed that female politicians who employed Hollywood makeup artists were 30% more likely to win their elections.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

- A good non-slip bathmat is essential in the tub to prevent accidents. Grab an extra one to drape over the edge of the tub for help when entering and exiting.
- "To remove residue left over from price tags, use hairspray. Remove as much paper as possible, and then give it a good squirt. Use a plastic scraper to lightly scrape off the adhesive." — L.P. in Ohio
- "Guacamole is a precious commodity at my house, but sometimes I want a snack, not a whole bowl. I have struggled with how to save the leftovers, because once it browns, it's done. I learned a new trick, though. Simply put the leftovers in the smallest container possible and tamp down to press out all the air. Then carefully add a thin layer of water. Seal and refrigerate for up to three days. When you're ready to dip, pour off the water and stir!" — C.D. in California

- "I have an old cedar chest from my grandmother that had lost its smell. My husband removed all the contents and sanded it with superfine grit sandpaper. It smells wonderful now." — J.K. in Iowa
- Got bread ends? Store in a bag in the freezer until you need breadcrumbs for a recipe. Pulse frozen chunks in a chopper or blender for instantly useable crumbs.
- Need a quick measure? A dollar bill (or other U.S. paper currency) is exactly 6 inches long.

Q: I just finished watching "Severance" on Apple TV+.

I was glued to the show the whole time. Who played Helly? I've never seen her before, and she was terrific. — K.W.

A: Britt Lower is the actress who played Helly in "Severance," a new streaming series on Apple TV+ that is gaining traction with viewers. It quietly debuted in February with the season finale in April. All 10 episodes are available on Apple TV+ to binge or space out however you'd like.

All the performers were compelling, but Lower in particular caught viewers' eyes ever since she appeared sprawled on a conference desk in the opening scene. She started out doing improv before landing primetime guest-starring roles on shows like "Law & Order: SVU." Her first series regular job was as Tanya in "Unforgettable," which starred Poppy Montgomery as a woman who solves crimes using her miraculous recall of memory. Lower's other credits include multiple episodes of short-lived series like "Man Seeking Woman" and "High Maintenance."

"Severance" is definitely the project that's put her on the map. It stars Adam Scott ("Parks and Recreation"), Patricia Arquette, John Turturro and Christopher Walken, and the less of the premise I give away, the better. It's a nail-biting thriller that has achieved critical acclaim and will likely be a presence at the next awards season, and has already been renewed for a second season.

Q: Is the NBC series "La Brea" ever returning with more new episodes? — R.W.

A: "La Brea" is about a group of people who fall into a sinkhole in Los Angeles and are transported 12,000 years into the past. It stars Natalie Zea ("Justified") and Eoin Macken ("The Night Shift") and was a big hit for its short 10-episode run. However, the season finale aired back in November 2021, so it's really tested the patience of fans eager for the story to continue.

Fortunately, "La Brea" has been given the greenlight for a second season with 14 episodes. "TVLine" reported that "given the sci-fi series' need for extensive postproduction VFX (visual effects), this bigger batch of episodes might be split into two halves so that season two can premiere sooner (meaning, this fall) rather than later." Filming is expected to resume in Australia this spring.

Q: When is "The Umbrella Academy" returning to Netflix? I know it usually takes about a year between seasons on Netflix, but it's been much longer with this show. — O.R.

Britt Lower

A: Season two of "The Umbrella Academy," starring Elliot Page, concluded with a big cliffhanger in August 2020, making it almost two years for new episodes. Just as with "La Brea," the post-production for "The Umbrella Academy" is much lengthier than your average series. Visual effects supervisor Everett Burrell told the website Gold Derby that "a lot of the feature film-effects tools have now trickled down to the TV industry," which results in "bigger and more epic-looking" shows, which of course takes time. Look for season three to debut June 22, 2022, on Netflix.

Pets Wearing Pants? How About No!

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I saw something on social media about a town in New York state that passed an ordinance requiring pets to "cover their genitals" by wearing pants. This is ridiculous! Is it for real? — Clark G.

DEAR CLARK: It's a wild idea, but no, the photo circulating on social media is fake. Pet owners, you can put away those doggy pants. (Unless your dog enjoys wearing them, of course.) Officials with the city of Auburn, New York, were unpleasantly surprised to find their city's letterhead going viral on social media just a couple of weeks ago. A fake letter said that residents' pets would be required to wear pants outside so that their genitals would not be in view. "It is an uncomfortable and difficult situation for a parent, grandparent or guardian to have to explain to their ward when they are questioned about canine and feline genitals," the letter said. It also claimed that many towns in New England have made pet pants mandatory — also not true. It's probably no accident that the fake letter started circulating just before April Fool's Day. And while it seems like a funny prank, the city of Auburn isn't laughing. "The intentional misrepresentation of the law and the forgery of the signature of an elected official are illegal acts and should be taken seriously," City Clerk Chuck Mason told The Citizen. (Read the article at this link: <https://tinyurl.com/2p8uedv4>, or search for "auburnpub.com, pet pants"). Hopefully, no one takes this to heart and tries to get a similar ordinance passed in their town. Our dogs and cats can let it all hang out with no fear of official reprisal, or ladies fainting away from the shock.

Captive Audience (NR) — Many might still remember the case of Steven Stayner, a 7-year-old who, in 1972, was abducted on his way home from school. Stayner returned home nearly a decade later, and as if their lives hadn't already been transformed enough, he and his family consequently received tons of media attention. These events left quite the impact on them in unprecedented ways; almost two decades later, Stayner's older brother shockingly committed a series of murders, leading to the deaths of four women. The limited documentary series "Captive Audience" dives into the duality of the Stayner family by breaking down the dark and multifaceted stories of a man regarded as a hero versus his brother who, in the shadows, emerges as a villain. From executive producers The Russo Brothers. Premieres April 21. (Hulu)

Cheaper by the Dozen (PG) — The 2022 remake of the family classic "Cheaper by the Dozen" is out now! The Disney+ original stars Zach Braff and Gabrielle Union as married couple Paul and Zoey Baker, who have nine children between them. Add in Paul's nephew, Seth, who gets taken in after his mother checks into rehab, and — you guessed it — that makes a dozen people in just one house! The phrase "never a dull moment" sums up the Baker house and their daily adventures in attempting to take on life as a 12-some. (Disney+)

White Hot: The Rise & Fall of Abercrombie & Fitch (NR) — Ah, the era of Abercrombie & Fitch. If you, like me, don't recall what caused this perfume-infested, dimly lighted store to be erased from most shopping centers across the nation, then Netflix has the perfect documentary film for you.

"White Hot" examines the exclusionary politics behind the Abercrombie & Fitch brand when it was at its highest point in American fashion. The models, the store employees, even the CEOs all had to fit into this "All-American" look that only reflected a certain percentage of our diverse population. The question remains, with the brand now showing efforts in improving inclusivity within the company, will Abercrombie & Fitch evolve past this "White Hot" time in its history? Premieres April 19. (Netflix)

They Call Me Magic (NR) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson's career in basketball only scratches the surface of his achievements. In a four-part documentary series, Johnson takes the spotlight, starting from his days playing ball with the Lakers leading up to the fateful day he announced his retirement, all the way to his involvement within several of the communities he serves. Johnson has become an advocate of those living with the HIV virus. He works as a leader in greenlighting projects that provide direct help to the Black community and also has made strides in helping to end gang violence. "They Call Me Magic" showcases just how many barriers Johnson has broken throughout the legacy of his life. Premieres April 22. (Apple TV+)

The problem of which long suit to establish in notrump play, when there is a genuine choice, does not always lend itself to hard and fast rules. While general bidding principles can be memorized to help one arrive at the proper contract, there are relatively few corresponding principles to direct declarer to the best line of play.

Hello Dolly Snack Bars

I was always partial to the famous Hello Dolly Bars back in the day. Now, I can enjoy the flavors of those bars, but keep the fats and sugars in check! Who could ask for more?!

- 1½ cups reduced-fat biscuit baking mix
- Sugar substitute to equal 1½ cup sugar, suitable for baking
- cup fat-free milk
- 2 tablespoons non-fat sour cream
- 1 egg or equivalent in egg substitute
- 1 teaspoon coconut extract
- 1¼ cup mini chocolate chips
- 1¼ cup chopped pecans
- 1¼ cup flaked coconut

1. Preheat oven to 350 F. Spray an 8-by-8-inch baking dish with butter-flavored cooking spray.
2. In a large bowl, combine baking mix and sugar substitute. Add milk, sour cream, egg and coconut extract. Mix gently just to combine. Fold in chocolate chips, pecans and coconut. Spread batter into prepared baking dish.
3. Bake for 20 to 24 minutes or until a toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Place baking dish on a wire rack and let set for at least 5 minutes. Cut into 24 bars. Makes 12 (2 bars each) servings. Freezes well.
- Each serving equals: 108 calories, 4g fat, 2g protein, 16g carbohydrates, 192mg sodium, 1g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 Starch, 1/2 Fat.

1. How many No. 1 chart toppers have Stray Cats had?
2. Which group released "How 'Bout Us"?
3. What city was "Leroy Brown" from?
4. Who had his first hit with "Splish Splash"?
5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "Look at us baby, up all night, Tearing our love apart, Aren't we the same two people, Who lived through years in the dark?"

Answers

1. Just one: "Runaway Boys," in 1980 ... in Finland. The song, from their debut album, also did well in Belgium and the U.K., but not the U.S.
2. The R&B group Champaign, in 1981, off their debut album. The song charted around the world and reached No. 1 in the U.S. on the Adult Contemporary chart.
3. "The baddest man in the whole downtown" was from the south side of Chicago. Songwriter Jim Croce wrote the song about a soldier he met in the Army who went AWOL but was arrested when he came back to pick up his paycheck.
4. Bobby Darin, in 1958.
5. "I Can't Tell You Why," by the Eagles in 1980. The rock ballad went to the Top 10 on multiple charts and was the first Eagles' song to feature bass guitarist Timothy B. Schmit on lead vocals.

vegetables and whole grains with fiber; modest amounts of fruits; several servings of nuts and fish weekly; and no more than modest amounts of meats. Advice from an expert in weight management may be of great benefit.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have a lot of moisture in my eyes. I have to keep wiping them. My previous doctor gave me a prescription eyedrop that helped. After I moved, my new doctor didn't give me the same thing. I got "dry eye" drops, which didn't help at all. Do you have a solution? -- W.L.

ANSWER: It is not intuitive that watery eyes can be a symptom of dry eyes, but it is indeed often the case. Eye lubrication may come from several parts of the eye, including the conjunctiva (a tissue that lines the insides of the eyelids), which secretes a mucus that lasts a long time and keeps the eyes comfortably moist. When the mucus production is inadequate in quantity or quality, the eyes get dry. When they become dry and irritated, one of the body's responses is to increase tear production from the lacrimal gland, which is what you are wiping away. The fluid from the lacrimal gland is not as long-lasting nor comfortable.

There are many different kinds of treatments for dry eyes. Artificial teardrops (these can be used every few hours) are a great place to start and perfectly adequate for most. Since those have failed, it's time to try something new. I'd recommend going back to the eye doctor with the name of the prescription medicine you had from your previous doctor. If you don't recall what it was, call your old pharmacy.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.
